75 Arrested in Melee.

By the Associated Press.

Possible beginning of the end of the 35-day-old steel strike occurred last night when Governor Townsend, of Indiana, suddenly demobilized troops he had called out earlier in the evening and announced a "peaceful" agreement under which 12,500 steel workers may return to work in Indiana today.

The CIO chief for that area, Van A. Bittner, after conferring with the Governor, sent telegrams ordering all picket lines dissolved, and giving instructions that no one interfere with the return to work.

The Governor's announcement was made at Indianapolis while at Canton, Ohio, on the Mahoning valley strike front, union leaders were considering the calling of a general strike to check the back-to-work movement under which the mills say they are rapidly reaching a pre-strike normalcy of operations.

Prior to reaching an agreement in Indiana, the Governor announced the calling out of troops.

The Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company set 8 a. m. today as the zero hour for attempting to resume operation at its plants closed since May 26.

Strike leaders immediately mobilized heavy picket reinforcements to combat the reopening move.

Nicholas Fontecchio, district director of the SWOC, estimated his union could marshal 4,000 men in a blockade.

At least eight persons were injured and 75 pickets were arrested in the Canton melee, but the relief movement was successfully carried out under the protection of Ohio national guardsmen.

The CIO, meanwhile, pressed its campaign to get national guardsmen withdrawn from the strike-embroiled Mahoning valley.

State officials sought to keep them there. Attorney General Duffy asked a continuance of the Mistaken for a burglar by his stepfather, Henry Waldrop, 14, was shot and killed early this morning in his home at 230 Whiteford avenue, N. E.

According to police reports, the lad came home late and aroused his sister, Mrs. Ruby Bridges, by tapping on the window of her bedroom. She opened the front door for him, and then returned to her room. As the lad was in the hallway, locking the door, his stepfather, T. W. Dukes, 59, who had been awakened by noise, came from his room, and allegedly fired in the dark.

A bullet from a .38 caliber pistol struck the boy in the left chest, near the shoulder, coming out the right side. He was pronounced dead by a doctor from Grady hospital. The body was taken to the establishment of Awtry & Lowndes.

Georgia Takes Possession of New Tattnall Prison

Keys to Georgia's installment-plan prison were delivered to the state yesterday by PWA through the Federal Reserve Bank. The state made a down payment of $59,960.26. Left to right, Chairman G. A. Johns, of the prison commission; Senator Glenn Phillips, Representative J. D. Bradley, W. P. Weisiger, PWA building inspector; Senator Paul Lindsay and S. P. Schuessler, assistant cashier of the bank.

PENITENTIARY KEY GIVEN TO GEORGIA

'Down Payment' Made to Government by State;
Quick Purchase Sought.

Georgia now holds the keys to the new state prison in Tattnall county, built at a cost of $1,505,112.49 by the Public Works Administration and technically "leased" to the state.

Judge G. A. Johns, chairman of the prison commission, yesterday received the master key, delivered to him with the lease contract by S. P. Schuessler, assistant cashier of the Federal Reserve Bank, who received it from W. P. Weisiger, chief building inspector of the PWA.

In return, Judge Johns delivered to the bank a draft for $59,960.26 as the "down payment."

200 Pounds of Keys. Asked why all the keys were not delivered to Judge Johns, Weisiger explained:

"This is the master key and will open any lock at the prison. If we gave him all the individual keys, they would weigh about 200 pounds."

The state still owes the government $1,025,000, to be paid in annual installments of $48,028.53, according to terms of the lease, which runs for 50 years.

Rain Prevents Amelia's Hop To Tiny Island

Sailors and Coast Guardsmen Waiting Along Route to Howland.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—(P)—The United States coast guard wireless station tonight intercepted a message from Amelia Earhart in which she said she would not take off from Lae, British New Guinea, until 8 p. m. (Atlanta time) tomorrow (11 a. m. July 2, Lae time), because of rain.

ABOARD CUTTER ITASCA, OFF HOWLAND ISLAND, June 30.—(P)—United States sailors and coast guardsmen set watch tonight along one of the loneliest stretches of the earth's surface to guide Amelia Earhart on the longest, most hazardous flight of her career.

The Itasca and the cutter Ontario awaited word of her take-off from Lae, British New Guinea, for a 2,570-mile nonstop flight over equatorial seas and island jungles to Howland Island, an almost microscopic bit of land representing America's frontier in the South Pacific.

Miss Earhart notified the coast guard she would start, weather

Transient Is Unable To Explain Scratches on Body or Past Movements

INGLEWOOD, Cal., June 30.—(P)—Police of the Los Angeles central detail said tonight Mrs. Jenny Vise and Helen Diard had "positively identified" Luther Dow, 33, ex-sailor, as the man they saw playing in a park last Saturday with three Inglewood children who later were slain.

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—(UP)—Luther Dow, 33, transient and alleged ex-convict, was booked on suspicion of murder charges tonight in connection with the slaying of three little Inglewood girls.

Detectives who arrested him said he was unable to explain scratches on his body such as might have been inflicted during a struggle.

They said, also, that he resembled generally the description of the mysterious "Eddie the Sailor" who was believed to have lured the youngsters from a playground. He had tattoo marks similar to those described by witnesses who saw the murderer with the girls, police said.

Parker Gets 6 Years In Wendel Kidnap Case

NEWARK, N. J., June 30.—(P) Charged by the court with having made a "mockery" of the processes of justice in New Jersey, Ellis H. Parker, 65-year-old country detective, was sentenced today to serve six years in a federal penitentiary for plotting the fantastic Wendel sequel of the Lindbergh baby case.

His 26-year-old son, Ellis Jr., convicted with him by a jury of eight women and four men a week ago after a nine-week trial, was sentenced to three years, Judge William Clark stating he believed Ellis Jr.'s actions were due in part, at least, to "loyalty" to his father.

Execution of both sentences was stayed by an appeal and the Parkers were freed under $20,000 bail each.

If their convictions are upheld, the senior Parker, chief of Burlington county detectives for 44 years, may apply for parole after serving two years and Parker Jr., after serving one.

The Parkers were found guilty under the Lindbergh law of conspiracy to seize Paul H. Wendel, former Trenton attorney, and force from him through torture a "confession" that he kidnapped the Lindbergh baby.

By L. A. FARRELL,
Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—There will be no special session of the Georgia general assembly before fall unless an emergency not now existing arises between now and then, Governor Rivers announced today.

The Governor made his announcement in a formal statement issued after he had conferred briefly with Senate President John B. Spivey, Speaker of the House Roy V. Harris and Chairman Charles S. Reid, of the state Democratic executive committee. The Governor's secretary, Downing Musgrove, also participated in the conference.

The conference was held in the Governor's room at the Cedars of Lebanon hospital where he has been confined for the last week. Expense Is Cited.

In his statement, Governor Rivers said that he does not consider the matters which would be taken up at a session at this time warrant the expense of the session, pointing out that even should the assembly classify tangibles for 1937 taxes most of the returns already are made and owners of such properties would not likely return this year.

The statement follows: "As originally planned, there will be no extra session of the Georgia general assembly earlier than late fall unless some new emergency arises."

"I have given utmost consideration to the views of those who had thought that an early special session might be desirable."

PITTMAN IS JUDGE, HUMPHRIES RULES

Incumbent Held Legal Occupant of Cherokee
Bench by Fulton Court.

Judge Claude C. Pittman is legally judge of the Cherokee circuit, Judge John D. Humphries of Fulton superior court decided yesterday in passing on constitutional questions raised in a quo warranto petition filed by John C. Mitchell, of Dalton, seeking to obtain the office.

The Pittman demurrer to the quo warranto proceedings was sustained in full. It is understood Mitchell will appeal the decision within the 10-day limit on a bill of exceptions to the state supreme court.

Mitchell, whose name appeared on the ballot unopposed in the June 8 election, brought quo warranto proceedings to obtain the judgeship after Judge Pittman had refused to surrender the office, declaring the election was not one at which a superior court judge could be constitutionally elected.

In his order sustaining the demurrer, Judge Humphries ruled, "The constitution provides for quadrennial elections for judges of the superior courts and such an election for the Cherokee circuit must be had at the general November election in 1940, whether or not one can be held at the general election in 1938. . . . It is not necessary to decide in this case whether an election for that purpose can be held at the general election in November, 1938."

OLD CHRISTIANA HUNDRED, Del., June 30.—An American version of a royal romance ended happily here today when tall, boyish Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., was married to brown-haired Ethel du Pont, linking the family of the No. 1 New Dealer with one of its most implacable enemies, the clan of the industrial du Ponts.

Although many of the foremost du Ponts, including old Pierre, titular head of the clan, had "other engagements for the day," those who came to the wedding mingled fraternally with the New Dealer Democrats both at the ceremony and afterward.

The President of the United States sat at one side of Little Christ church, the tiny chapel founded by the Delaware du Ponts, and on the other side, separated by a strip of white satin, cided in an emergency session

today the Russo-Japanese crisis could be settled peaceably only if the Soviet immediately withdrew all armed forces from territory claimed by the Japanese-inspired state of Manchukuo.

TOKYO, July 1.—(Thursday)—
(P)—Japanese newspapers charged today that Russia has a fleet of 40 warships, heavy contingents of troops, airplanes and tanks ready for action along the Amur river on the Siberian frontier, where three Russian gunboats were reported yesterday to have engaged in battle with Japanese-Manchouanother disabled and a third forced to flee, Japanese army advices said in an account of yesterday's a small group claimed both by Manchukuo and by Russia.

JAPANESE GUNBOAT REPORTED CAPTURED

MOSCOW, Thursday, July 1.
(UP)—Soviet dispatches from Lagovestchensk said today that a Japanese-Manchukuo gun-boat was captured by Soviet forces during a Russo-Japanese fight on the Manchukuo-Siberian border Tuesday.

Two Russians were killed and three wounded when Japanese artillery opened fire on a Soviet gunboat, the reports said. The Japanese-Manchukuo gunboat was reported seized and towed to the Russian shore on the Amur river.

Describing the Soviet flotilla which figured in the Amur river clash, the newspaper Asahi said the fleet was composed of 40 modern warcraft.

Some were heavy gunboats, the paper said, and others were of shallow draft. At least 10 were said to be 1,000-ton boats, carrying four 4.8 inch guns.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi declared that Russian troops had mobilized along the river between Khabarovsk, Siberia, and Blagoveschensk, ready for action.

There were 300,000 troops, including 10 infantry divisions and

Nichi said, and 1,000 airplanes.

ATLANTA RETAILERS REPORT TRADE GAIN TO RESERVE BANK

City Leads District; Georgia Farm Income Increases.

Atlanta retail trade, as reflected in business done by local department stores, continued to lead the sixth federal reserve district in May with a mark of 203.3 per cent, according to the monthly review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, released yesterday. The mark is based on figures from 1923-25 as 1,000.

The May figure showed a gain of 25 over May last year and 20.7 over April. The entire district showed sales at 115.8, a gain of 9.6 over April and 12.7 over May a year ago.

Department store stocks here were reported at 74.2, which was 4.3 under April but 20.6 over May a year ago.

Atlanta ranked second among five reporting cities in number of building permits, with a mark of 65.1, an increase of 21 over April and 10.7 over May last year. The mark ranked third in money involved, with a total value of $480,000, compared with $352,000 in April.

Georgia's cash farm income in April was $5,559,000, compared with $5,068,000 for April last year. Wholesale trade in the district during May was reported at 65.5, compared to 69.4 in May last year and 89 in April this year.

Building activity, coal, mining and retail trade in the district as a whole increased in May but there were small reductions in the wholesale trade of the district and in the daily average production of pig iron, according to the review. The price of cotton declined during the month. Increased investments but decreased loans were noted at reporting banks.

tional system of Georgia on a par with the best in the Union.

Teachers To Get More.
Increased salaries for teachers have been provided and minimums have been set up. It is anticipated that the action will do much to raise the standards of the teaching profession in the state.

The present State Board of Education ceases to exist and will be replaced by a new board of 10 members, yet to be appointed. The Governor is expected to appoint the new board members soon after his return from the Pacific coast.

Additional funds have been required to finance the huge new program and $20,000,000 have been appropriated from general funds. More than $30,000,000 will become available from allocated funds and federal aid.

It has been estimated that the $20,000,000 general appropriation will be shy of providing sufficient funds and a special session of the legislature is in prospect at which time additional revenue raising projects are slated to be enacted.

Organization of the state highway patrol, also provided under a Rivers administration act is going forward under Major John C. Carter with a state-wide drivers' license to finance operations.

PENITENTIARY KEY GIVEN TO GEORGIA

Bradley, Tattnall county—members of a joint legislative committee—said they would recommend payment at the rate of about $250,000 per year, which would retire the debt in four years. This, however, would have to be authorized by the general assembly, they said.

Awalt Rivers' Return.
This proposal and plans for purchase of machinery for the new prison will await the return of Governor Rivers from the west coast before they are taken further, Senator Phillips said.

Phillips also said it was planned to install a small cotton mill in the plant as one of the first steps toward adding to the state's prison industrial equipment. The mill would spin yarn and weave cloth from which prison clothing would be made. The penitentiary at Milledgeville is equipped for making up clothing, manufacturing motor vehicle license tags and turpentine boxes, all for use by the state.

Other present equipment includes machinery for the manufacture of highway signs and the making and repairing of mattresses. The new prison has a capacity of 2,500.

Transfer of prisoners to the new plant will be a "gradual" operation, Johns said, for which plans as yet have not been formulated.

Commenting on advantages to be derived from the new plant and its industrialization, Johns said:

"It should equip them for a better way of life, for they would have a trade."

HEARING SET TODAY ON BUS LINE PETITION

Hearing on the proposal to abandon the Luckie street car line will be held today by the public works committee of city council, Councilman George Lyle, chairman, announced yesterday.

The Georgia Power Company has petitioned to be allowed to substitute a bus line serving both the Luckie street and Techwood areas but many Luckie street residents have objected.

Mayor Hartsfield said yesterday he will appear before the committee to urge paving of sidewalks. "In some sections of the city the sidewalks are knee deep in mud when it rains," he said. "It is a disgrace."

F. D. R. WELCOMES 25,000 BOY SCOUTS

President Expresses Hope That Jamboree Will Make Them Better Citizens.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, in a message prepared for delivery tonight to 25,000 Boy Scouts, said he hoped experiences at their national jamboree here would make them better Scouts and more stalwart citizens.

The message was entrusted to Attorney General Cummings for reading to the Scouts around a huge campfire near the Washington monument. It said:

"Fellow Scouts:
"Welcome to Washington.
"I had great pleasure last February in inviting you to hold the great national Scout jamboree here and now it is an honor and a privilege to welcome you to the nation's capital.

"How fitting that you should hold this jamboree in Washington with your camp pitched within sight of the White House and the capitol and almost within the shadow of the Washington monument and the Lincoln memorial. Yours will be a memorable camp and I know you will draw inspiration from the environment and associations that will be yours during your stay in the city.

Permanent Influence.
"The impressions which you will carry back to your homes will, I hope, be a permanent influence in your lives, for sooner than we who are older realize, you will assume the full responsibilities of citizenship. I firmly believe that few influences are more helpful in teaching self-reliance than is the influence which surrounds the youngsters enrolled in the Boy Scouts—and a preliminary training in self-reliance is surely an invaluable asset to those who a few years hence will assume all the duties and responsibilities of American citizenship.

"I have often expressed the conviction that there are many thousands of men throughout our country who are better citizens today because in boyhood they had enjoyed affiliation with the Boy Scouts. And so I like to think that the ideals of scouting are not simply ideals for boys.

Honesty Stressed.
"Honor, honesty, straightforward dealing and a spirit of helpfulness toward others are ideals for men and there is a better prospect that we shall find these char-

COLONEL LUKE LEA PARDONED BY HOEY

Wallace B. Davis Is Also Released From Term in N. C. Prison.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 30.—(AP) Governor Clyde R. Hoey announced tonight he had granted a pardon to Colonel Luke Lea, former United States senator and publisher of Tennessee, who served two years in North Carolina state prison for conspiracy to violate the state banking laws.

At the same time he said he had issued a pardon to Wallace B. Davis, of Asheville, president of the defunct Central Bank & Trust Company.

The $17,000,000 failure of this bank sent Davis to prison for a five-to-seven year term; Colonel Lea for a six-to-ten year term, and Luke Lea Jr. for two-to-six-year term.

Both have been free on parole several months.

PITTMAN IS JUDGE, HUMPHRIES RULES

the term of office of Pittman: "When a person has been elected judge for a full term and has qualified by taking the oath and receiving his commission, he becomes a judge whose term of office shall be four years and until his successor is qualified." By these plain words, the term of the electorate's choice for judge continues during the prescribed four years and thereafter until a successor is qualified.

"This tenure of office is beyond the reach of the executive department of government and can not be interrupted by the Governor while it endures. This provision of the constitution can not be taken out by mere legislative act or by construction; nor can it be obviated by executive order. It must be given effect."

Superior court judges must be elected at general elections at which electors entitled to vote for members of the general assembly of the whole state are named, that is the election, "next preceding the expiration of their respective terms," Judge Humphries held.

Assembly Not Authorized. The general assembly by act provided for the election of a judge of the Cherokee circuit at the June 8 election, but Judge Humphries held "the general assembly lacks authority to change that constitutional requirement."

ITALIAN SOLDIERS TO STAY IN SPAIN

The Spanish civil war the character of a European war" and charged that "50,000 foreign volunteers from every part of Europe had arrived in Spain from France by the second half of 1936."

Not until the end of 1936 did Fascist volunteers begin to depart for Spain, the editorial continued. Italy, Il Popolo said, "fruitlessly respected the non-intervention agreement," since it became effective last fall. On the other hand, it charged, the accord "never has been respected by France" and "English non-intervention is a fable in which only imbeciles can believe."

As far as Fascist volunteers are concerned, the paper said, "since they were not sent by the government, the government has no means to recall them. It cannot do it and in the present circumstances, it will not."

ENGLAND AWAITS ITALO-NAZI MOVES

LONDON, June 30.—(AP)—Great Britain tonight awaited German and Italian moves to heal the widening breach in the nonintervention cordon around Spain. The Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons "We should know in the next few days" whether the gap in the naval patrol created by withdrawal of German and Italian warships "will be closed or not."

He said Germany and Italy had not put forward any alternative proposals to the plan they rejected which called for Britain and France to extend their patrol zones to cover the gap.

Further gaps in the supervision of nonintervention appeared. Portugal was disclosed to have withdrawn her observers from duty on the Portuguese-Spanish frontier as well as to have suspended facilities for British observers.

REDS PUSH MEASURES TO PROVINCES

MADRID, June 30.—(AP)—The steady insurgent drive from Bilbao toward Santander today spurred the Madrid-Valencia government to push measures for aid to the stricken northern provinces.

At Valencia, the government held a long conference with a Basque delegation which pressed for assistance to the Basque army which was declared to be putting up strong resistance.

ADMIRAL APOLOGIZES FOR SLUR ON RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP) Secretary Hull announced today he had conveyed to the Soviet government an apology by Admiral William D. Leahy for referring recently to the Russian people as "virtually slaves of the central organization."

The state department disclosed that the Soviet embassy made informal representations against Leahy's remarks, which were contained in an address prepared for delivery to the army industrial college on June 22.

President, Mrs. Roosevelt and Sons Attend Wedding

ETHEL, FRANKLIN JOINED IN WEDLOCK

stolidly sat members of the far-flung du Pont family.

Dr. Peabody Ends Rites.

Before the altar, decked in white peonies, ferns and palms, young Roosevelt, third son of the President, and his bride stood while an 80-year-old man, the Rev. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton, who 32 years ago married the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, uttered the final words of the Protestant Episcopal service.

"I now pronounce that they are man and wife in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

It was the climax of a ceremony that has seldom been equaled in the romantic panorama of America's first families.

The bride, in a billowing dress entirely of white tulle lined with white crepe under a clouding of net, entered the chapel at 4 p. m. (Atlanta time). She was a stunning picture of youth and health and beauty.

Even in the bride's costume there was a symbol of the far-flung du Pont empire, for she wore tiny orange blossoms—a du Pont synthetic product—around her waist in a narrow girdle. A 12-foot train trailed behind her over the full shirred skirt, caught in the girde.

The bodice was of three rows of shirring, caught in a soft "v" at the neckline with a clasp of synthetic orange blossoms. The sleeves were soft and puffed, and the veils, in three layers, were edged with a thin silver thread.

The "Juliet cap," worked in with miniature orange blossoms, was reminiscent of the "Romeo and Juliet" flavor of the courtship between the scion of the New Deal Roosevelts and the Liberty League du Ponts.

As she stepped into the chapel on the arm of her father, Eugene du Pont, the strains of the wedding procession from "Lohengrin" were wafted softly on the hushed air.

At the third bar of the march, young Roosevelt, in conventional cutaway and striped trousers, with white spats, double-breasted white vest and gray tie under a turned-down collar, entered the vestry from the right with his brother, John.

Roosevelt's Groom. The Roosevelt family had already gathered in a front pew on the right side of the church. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a white chiffon dress printed in mixed colors which she called "old ladyish and kind of mixy." Her large hat was trimmed with small flowers.

The bridal party assembled slowly at the flower-banked altar. Miss du Pont did not reveal what her "something borrowed and something new" were, but she carried "something old and something blue" in the form of a French prayer book printed in 1869. It was of antique carved ivory, to which were fastened sprays of utterly orchids, and the printing was in blue.

At the left, as they met at the altar, were the women of the du Pont clan, with corsages of white and red orchids encased in orange "flame."

The matron of honor, Mrs. John Boettiger, sister of the groom, and Miss Aimee du Pont, the bride's sister and bridesmaid, carried oblong shower bouquets.

Attendants at Altar.

The attendants at the altar were clustered with du Ponts and Roosevelts. Even the services were divided, the Rev. Frederick T. Ashton, rector of the church which the du Ponts built, starting the ceremony and Dr. Peabody finishing it.

The Rev. Mr. Ashton's function was simple and brief. He said: "Dear beloved, we are gathered together in the sight of God and this company to see this man and this woman joined together in holy matrimony."

Then he asked: "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

Eugene du Pont stepped forward, said "I do," and retired. So did the Rev. Mr. Ashton, and Dr. Peabody took up the service.

The young groom recited in stiff, solemn tones, "I, Franklin, take thee, Ethel, to have and to hold, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer," the members of the two families turned and stared solemnly at each other.

John Roosevelt gave his brother the ring and he placed it on the bride's finger, and said, "With this ring I wed thee."

Using the revised prayer book, the bride did not promise to obey, nor did she endow him with all her worldly goods, which in current economic reckoning would be considerably in excess of his.

The little company bowed their heads while Dr. Peabody reverently murmured a prayer that the young couple might "live faithfully together, and surely perform and keep the vow and covenant between them made, and may ever remain in perfect love and peace together."

They knelt on a white satin pillow while he passed his hands over their heads. Young Roosevelt helped his bride arise, kissed her and instantly the joyous strains of Mendelssohn's wedding recessional burst from the organ.

The company remained standing until the President and Mrs. Roosevelt left for the reception at The Owl's Nest, the du Pont estate where the bride's parents live.

There were more than 1,200 invited to the reception, but only 840 could crowd into the little granite church.

Many gathered near the church hours before the ceremony to listen to Dr. Charles M. Courboin, noted organist, who played the wedding music.

Church a Bower.

The church itself was a veritable bower. The 14 windows were framed with greenery and flowers—California woodwardia fern, white peonies and lilies. The choir stall to the left of the altar, occupied by du Pont household retainers, was decorated with tall palms and ferns.

The music at the church before the wedding included Schubert's "Ave Maria," Bach's "Aria for the G String," excerpts from cantatas by Bach, and Cesar Franck's "Prayer."

At the reception Meyer Davis' orchestra played favorites of the newlyweds—for the bride, "The Love Bug Will Bite You," "When My Dream Boat Comes Home" and "September in the Rain," and for young Roosevelt, "Gee, You're Swell," "Too Marvelous for Words" and "Sweet Is the Word for You."

John, the groom's brother, was as solemn as if he were playing the major role when he stalked up the aisle.

Mrs. Boettiger, formerly Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, on the other hand, smiled and nodded to newspaper friends along the aisle.

Bride's Train Tangles.

The bride's train became tangled as she entered the church—possibility about which she had feared—but an attendant untangled it to the altar.

President Roosevelt leaned on the arm of his son, Elliott, who was one of the ushers. His mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, wearing a black crepe dress with large white roses, followed him out of the church.

All married children of the Roosevelts were at the ceremony, as well as John, the only unmarried son of the President.

Both bride and groom were solemn and unsmiling during the entire service. Ethel glanced from side to side as she entered, but on the way out looked only at her husband.

Greeted by Thunderstorm. The bridal party stepped out into a thunderstorm, and made their way hastily to a car which took them back to the Owl's Nest for the reception.

As the President and Mrs. Roosevelt left, a photographer's flashlight bulb exploded and the first lady stopped and inquired anxiously:

"Did it get in your eyes?"

The photographer assured her it had not, and she smiled and went on.

More men wore sack suits than cutaways, but the only one in an ice-cream suit was Postmaster James A. Farley. The President wore a cutaway.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt arrived at the reception at 4:45 p. m. (Atlanta time). Mr. Roosevelt rolled down the window of his White House car and waved to a small cluster of spectators gathered in the rain at the estate entrance.

BIG SOVIET FLEET MASSED AT BORDER

600 armored motor trucks and 1,000 tanks. Japanese forces also are being established along the river area, advices here said.

Asahi declared that the situation was fraught with grave possibilities because huge forces of Soviet and Japanese Manchoukuo fighters faced each other along the river banks, while the Russian naval force allegedly loitered along the Amur channel.

This, the newspaper pointed out, would make possible a clash on an extensive scale.

Forces Ready to Fight.

Dispatches from the area today said the Russian army was concentrating land, naval and air forces at Boyarkov, southward from Blagoveschensk, and that the forces appeared ready for retaliatory attacks.

The Japanese-Manchoukuo troops mobilized to combat any incidents that might occur. Foreign office officials professed hope that the incident would be settled by diplomatic means. (The Japanese ambassador to Moscow was in midnight conference with the Russian foreign office.)

Army, navy and cabinet officers, however, were in urgent night-long conferences, presumably mapping a course of action.

Russia Accused.

Newspapers blazoned the Amur river battle in great headlines, placing responsibility upon the Soviet force.

The Japanese (Domei) news agency said newspapers were without details of the reported Amur battle, but the newspaper Asahi in a dispatch from Hsinking said that reports to Japanese headquarters there indicate that "Soviet losses are far greater than imagined."

Military spokesmen here expressed great concern, citing 185 allegedly illegal acts by Russian forces against Manchoukuo in recent months.

Japanese army reports said the Russian vessels in yesterday's clash "invaded" the Amur channel and opened fire against soldiers who were bathing.

The Japanese government instructed its ambassador in Moscow, Mamoru Shigemitsu, to protest against the alleged invasion of Manchoukuo territory on behalf of Japan under the terms of the Japan-Manchoukuo defensive alliance.

RUSSIA CONCENTRATES 30 GUNBOATS ON AMUR. MOSCOW, June 30.—(UP)—Japanese Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu said today that Russia has concentrated 30 gunboats on the Amur river near the disputed Bolshoi and Sennufu Island groups.

Russia also has "a very large army in this territory." Japanese-Manchoukuo forces in the region "do not exceed four or five divisions."

ASSEMBLY SESSION COSTS $3,576 DAILY

Bulk of Expenses Found in Per Diems of Legislators.

The last regular session of the general assembly cost the state at the rate of $3,576.33 a day, a report issued yesterday by the treasury department revealed.

Included in the total cost of $230,343.02 were traveling expenses of the legislators to and from the session, pay of house and senate members and attaches, advertising of the amendments, printing of bills, loud speaker systems and incidental expenses.

Advertising of the amendments cost $20,000, the report showed. It cost $1,614.80 for the senators to travel to and from the preliminary 10-day meeting, and the same amount of mileage allowances went to them for the 60-day session.

The 205 house members drew mileage allowances of $6,342.90 twice. At the rate of $7 a day for members, it took $3,600 to pay the senators for the 10-day session, and $21,800 for the regular meeting.

Pay of house members was $14,380 for the 10 days and $86,480 for the longer period.

To attach to the 60-day session went $13,132 in the senate and $22,859.33 in the house, the figures including the $60 per diem for the senate secretary and $70 for the house clerk. Both officials have to pay assistants in their offices from their allowances.

Accidentally shown in the abdomen Jim Donehoo, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Donehoo, of 1294 Lucile avenue, S. W., was admitted to Grady hospital in serious condition at about 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Donehoo and several other boys were playing with a .22-caliber automatic pistol in the yard of 1265 Lucile avenue. According to police reports, believing the weapon was empty, George Kilburn, 14, of 1262 Greenwich avenue, S. W., discharged it.

Kilburn will probably be examined this morning by investigators of Fulton juvenile court. He was released yesterday in custody of his parents.

EFFECTIVE CONTROL OF BUDGET URGED
IN FEDERAL STUDYManagement Committee Recommends Granting of Lump Sums.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's committee on administrative management recommended today that congress change its practice of making highly detailed appropriations and grant lump-sum amounts in the interest of "more effective budgetary control."

The recommendation was contained in a study of fiscal management in the national government, one of a series in support of the President's five-point program for reorganization of the executive branch submitted to congress in January.

Two Sections.
The study was divided into two sections, one by A. E. Buck on financial control and accountability and one by Harvey C. Mansfield, of the general accounting office. The chief recommendations were:

1. Reorganization and strengthening of the budget bureau.
2. Establishment of improved budgetary control.
3. Submission of the budget to congress on March 1 instead of shortly after January 1, so that a new President would have some hand in formulating the budget after taking office January 20.

4. Reorganization of the Treasury Department into five bureaus and transfers of its nonfiscal functions.
5. Transfer of executive functions from the general accounting office to the Treasury.
6. Establishment of a general auditing office to replace the general accounting office, with the duties of the new agency confined to making a post audit of the government's fiscal transactions and reporting to congress.

7. Creation of a joint congressional committee on public accounts to review the findings of the general auditing office.
Lump Sum Recommended.
In suggesting that congress adopt a policy of making large lump sum appropriations instead of detailing the purposes for which the money shall be spent, the report said:

"Aside from the organizational changes suggested above, budget making would be greatly facilitated by a substantial reduction in the number of appropriation items. Such a step would improve the exercise of budgetary control over expenditures and at the same time would make for departmental economy."

SECURITY SYSTEM WILL TAKE EFFECT IN GEORGIA TODAY

Operations Will Begin Despite Incomplete Setups in All Counties.

Georgia's social security pension system, with federal and state money allocated for its support, will go into full effect today despite incomplete organization of all counties, Director Lamar Murdaugh announced.

In the 12 counties which do not yet have necessary welfare boards, details of administration of old-age pensions and other security benefits will be administered by district supervisors.

Examination First. The first task facing welfare directors throughout the state is examination of applicants for assistance so that first checks can be distributed July 15.

The 12 counties which have not submitted local board members acceptable to the state board, and the number of members yet to be approved in each, are:

Appling, three; Clinch, four; Houston, one; Jeff Davis, four; Jones, three; Lamar, two; McIntosh, three; Pike, one; Quitman, one; Talbot, one; Twiggs, three, and Wilcox, one.

Supervisors for the 10 congressional districts of the state—designated also as district welfare directors in order to handle and investigate applications—will be:

First district, Miss Marjorie Fish, Savannah; second, Miss Elizabeth Brown, Albany; third, Miss Alvarado Kennan, Columbus; fourth, Miss Eloise Cleveland, Newnan; fifth, Miss Opal Futch, Atlanta; sixth, Miss Genie Clarie Barnes, Macon; seventh, Mrs. Paul Gregory, Marietta; eighth, Miss Nell Franklin, Waycross; ninth, Miss Lucile Wilson, Gainesville, and tenth, Miss Leslie Robinson, of Athens.

Allotment Made. For the July-September quarter, the federal government has allocated Georgia $328,500, of which $226,800 will be for old-age pensions, $18,900 for aid to the needy blind, and $82,800 for assistance to dependent children.

Murdaugh said the state treasurer had informed him $400,000 would be available in state's money for use during the same period. The federal money will go toward 50 per cent of the pension costs, the state will bear 40 per cent, and the individual counties the remaining 10 per cent.

In those counties which do not have approved boards, Murdaugh said, federal and state funds will be available if county commissioners make their share of the cost available to the district supervisors for remittance to the state department.

The plan of operation, including the handling of incompletely organized counties through the district agents, bears approval of the federal Social Security Board, Murdaugh explained, and the

City Administration Praised by Pastors

A letter commending the city administration on its vigorous attitude in the suppression of crime was delivered personally to Mayor Hartsfield and Chief of Police Hornsby yesterday afternoon by a committee representing the Christian Council of Atlanta and the Evangelical Ministers' Association.

The letter was signed by the presidents of the two organizations, the Rev. W. M. Elliott Jr., of the Evangelical Association, and Dr. W. A. Shelton, of the Christian Council.

state-wide program will experience no delay.

Assistance Ordered. "The district supervisors, who have been designated also as district directors, have been instructed to accept applications directly from any applicant in any county where a county director has not yet been approved," Murdaugh said.

"Thus, every resident of the state desiring to file an application, will have adequate facilities for making such an application."

"This is all that is required under the federal act, and our plan of operation bears federal approval."

Besides the welfare boards each county is required to have, there also is provision for county directors to be selected by the local agency subject to state approval.

Murdaugh has announced selection of directors for 55 counties, and said others are being approved rapidly. The district directors will perform services of county directors in incomplete counties until organization is completed.

County welfare directors approved yesterday included: Baker county, Mrs. Eliza Anderson; Berrien, Mrs. Pauline Lee; Calhoun, Miss Sadie Layson; Chatham, Miss Frances Burkhalter; Columbia, Mrs. Susie B. West; Crisp, Mrs. Georgia McArthur; Daugherty, Mrs. Allene Arenbach; Fannin, Mrs. Thelma Dovan; Floyd, Miss Lillian Duke; Henry, Mrs. Gertrude Turner; Jefferson, Mrs. B. B. Powell; Jenkins, Mrs. Acanth Shivers; Lowndes, Mrs. Rebecca Fry; Pierce, Mrs. Jean Alexander; Polk, Miss Annie Young; Pulaski, Mrs. Grace Watson; Randolph, Alton Ray; Stephens, Mrs. Louise Burton; Thomas, Miss Louise Starnford; Towns, Charles W. Colwell; Webster, Mrs. Tommie McCarrah; Macon, Mrs. Frances Taylor.

Investigation of applicants throughout Georgia will be started today, Murdaugh said.

Procedure Outlined. County, or district, directors will report their findings to county welfare boards, which in turn will submit a requisition to the state board for payment of individual pensions.

The state department, after reviewing the requisitions, will disburse pension payments by mailed checks from a central Atlanta disbursing office directly to the beneficiaries.

When a county files its monthly requisition, it must accompany it with a check for 10 per cent of the total amount involved.

The investigation and requisition details in unorganized counties will be handled by the district officers, and payments will be made if the county commissioners deposit their share of the cost.

BIBB WELFARE BOARD ELECTS COUNTY DIRECTOR. MACON, Ga., June 30.—(P)—In their initial meeting this afternoon members of the Bibb county welfare board elected Miss Annie Moore Daughtry as county welfare director.

Miss Daughtry, a native of Macon, has been executive of the Macon-Bibb welfare organization since early in the spring.

The old department will be merged with the new social security body, effective tomorrow morning. The board elected Will S. Payne Jr., chairman.

Miss Daughtry's name will be presented for confirmation to the state welfare board.

The welfare board now serving is composed of Mr. Payne, Joseph Popper, Helen Chichester, A. A. Almond and Harrison Daugherty. The Rev. W. W. Williams, who was named at the last meeting of the commissioners, withdrew his original acceptance yesterday.

The state board appointed Mr. Daugherty to serve in his place. The latter, superintendent of the Masonic home, had been named on the first list appointed by the commissioners then, for a reason never explained by the state board, was disqualified. Neither was a reason given by the board in Atlanta yesterday for Mr. Daugherty's reinstatement.

The conference this morning was closed to the press.

PENSION IS SOUGHT FOR HARRISON'S WIDOW. WASHINGTON, June 30.—Mrs. Elizabeth Harrison Walker, only living child of President Benjamin Harrison, asked the senate pensions committee yesterday to approve a $5,000 annuity for her 79-year-old mother, who married Harrison three years after he left the White House.

She testified the widow lives on the income of $100,000 trust fund left by the President, plus $25,000 inherited from an earlier husband.

Lochinvar Brought Out of the West By Little Note in Bale of Cloth

Cotton Mill Cinderella Finds Unexpected Romance and Marriage After Entrusting Lonely Plea, "Please Write," to Shipped Bundle.

MONROE, Ga., June 30.—How another young Lochinvar came out of the west, once to woo and once to wed the girl who came to him through a note in a bale of cloth, was disclosed here recently when Willie Mae McDonald, 22, Cinderella of the cloth room in a local mill, married and went to California with her correspondent of two years.

It all happened because Willie Mae, perhaps lonely and perhaps a bit discouraged with a not-to-bright future, slipped a little note into a bale of cloth and promptly forgot it. Well, maybe she didn't forget it entirely. Maybe she wondered, as the bale was packed and shipped, if word of it would ever come back to her. Perhaps she wondered, in the ensuing days, if it ever reached the hands of one who might give a passing thought to her loneliness. "Please write," the note had said, and it bore her name and address.

How long, or over what routes that bale traveled, none can tell. But it finally was sold and delivered to the Sugar Refining Company's warehouse in San Francisco.

There, Ralph Luque, a young and handsome California-born Spaniard, chanced to find the little note, and it struck a responsive chord in his romantic Spanish heart.

Luque, then 25, was perhaps a bit curious about this lonely Georgia girl, 3,000 miles away, and he wrote. She answered, and for two years their letters traced their tedious way across the country. During those long months it is certain that a measure of closer understanding blossomed.

January of this year young Luque appeared at the home of Willie Mae's parents here, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McDonald. They found him a most likeable young man, and welcomed him for a visit which lasted 10 days.

This month he returned to Monroe a second time and on June 18, it is now disclosed, he and Willie Mae were married and returned to California, where he now is employed by the Southern Pacific railway. There they have their own home and Willie Mae writes, "California treats me like a queen."

SCOUT FLEETWOOD WILL RETURN HOME

Congressman Tarver To Accompany Injured Youth.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., June 30. Mr. and Mrs. Milton L. Fleetwood, parents of John Trafton Fleetwood, Eagle Scout, who was injured Monday while attending the Boy Scout jamboree in Washington, today received word that he will return home tomorrow in company with Congressman M. C. Tarver.

Young Fleetwood, 16, suffered a severe cut on his knee when an ax slipped as he was helping erect tents at the Jamboree camp. He was taken to Naval hospital in Washington for treatment, and when his condition did not improve as expected, attending physicians advised his return home.

He is a son of the publisher of the Cartersville Tribune News.

Drunkard Mouse Caught Rednosed

A drunkard mouse which nightly staggered through the living room while returning from the scene of its secret debauches worried its host until last Saturday night.

Then Calvin Bush, of White Oak drive, perplexed at the tipsy rodent's behavior, set an early watch in the pantry and caught it red nosed. It had found access to an open keg of wine and was sampling the beverage with evident enjoyment. It died a drunkard's death.

FLORIDAN SUCCUMBS TO RATTLESNAKE BITE

BRADENTON, Fla., June 30.—(P)—J. P. Weeks, an engineer for the Palmetto Fruit Company, died in a hospital here from a rattlesnake bite suffered early last night while at work in his grove north of Palmetto.

Weeks was pruning trees when a large rattler coiled near him sank its fangs in his left leg. He attempted to slash the wound with a pocket knife but found it too dull for the purpose. At the hospital he was given nine injections of serum.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(P)—A congressional committee received testimony today that Alfred Sloan Jr., Myron C. Taylor, John Hay Whitney and Ed Wynn saved some $700,000 in taxes by incorporating yachts, country estates, racing stables or personal talent.

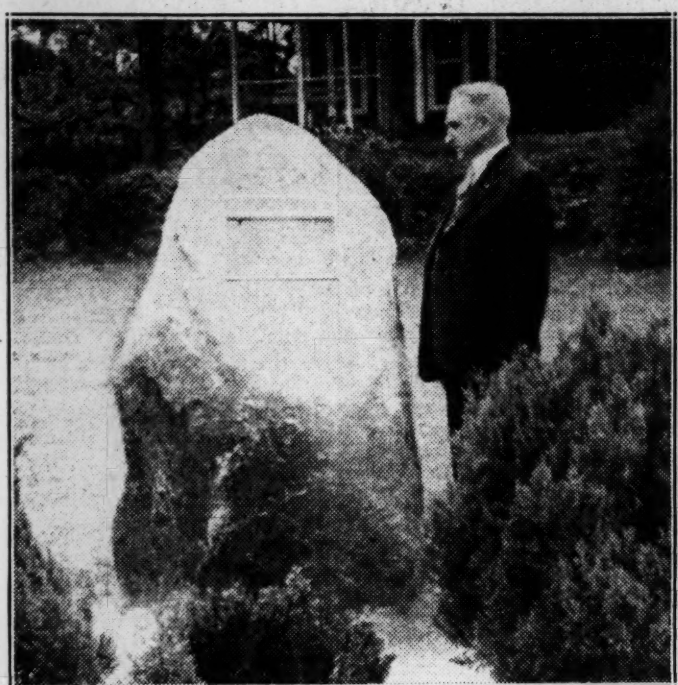

Arthur H. Kent, treasury attorney, also informed the senate-house committee on tax evasion and avoidance that more than half a dozen other individuals had accomplished similar tax reductions of another $700,000.

$128,528 Saved on Yacht.

He said Sloan, president of General Motors Corporation, saved $128,528 on his yacht Rene; Taylor, or his wife, from $4,400 to $16,800 on their large residences; Whitney, well known for his interest in horse racing, $396,125 on his stables, and Wynn, actor, radio entertainer and show producer, $196,728 by turning over his contracts to his own corporations.

In New York, Sloan called the treasury's figuring "illogical," declaring all deductions he made

Fish Reliters Charges.

Soon after Kent had finished his presentation, Representative Fish, Republican, New York, took the house floor to urge again that the committee scrutinize the tax returns of President Roosevelt. He said the chief executive himself "is using legal loopholes" and has "admitted that he is using them."

Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, said Fish would be given a "fair opportunity" to present any material he might desire, adding:

"I challenge the statement that the President has resorted to such methods of tax avoidance."

Fish shot back that he did not propose to let Doughton, or anybody else, "laugh off the charges I have made."

RELIEF IS SLASHED*Tennessee Drops 4,000 Families From Rolls.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 30.—(P)—Tennessee will stop supplying direct relief at midnight tonight for an estimated 4,000 families, or 40 per cent of the present case load.

Probably 6,000 other families, Welfare Director Roy L. Garis said, will continue temporarily to receive scrip and commodities at the old rates averaging between $7 and $9 a month.

Dropping of the 4,000 from relief rolls and continuation of the remaining 6,000 on a temporary basis results from enactment of Tennessee's new social security laws which are counted on to meet all state relief obligations eventually.

MACON, Ga., June 30.—(P)—Edgar B. Bruce was convicted late today of the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Harriett Gambrell. The jury recommended mercy, which made a life sentence mandatory.

A red light flashed on outside the jury room at 3:10 p. m., indicating a verdict had been reached.

Bruce was undressed in his cell. As soon as he could be made ready for his appearance in court, he was taken to the courtroom. Meanwhile, lawyers on both sides were summoned.

Bruce was pale as he entered the courtroom, but uttered not a word. He sat motionless as the jury filed in.

"Have you reached a verdict?" asked Judge McClellan, of the jury.

"We have," answered E. L. Cox, foreman.

Cox handed the verdict to Solicitor Charles H. Garrett, who read it to the court. It recommended mercy, finding Bruce guilty of murder.

Mrs. Bruce was not in the courtroom. An uncle and aunt, Edwin S. Davis and Mrs. Judith Wiley, who had been there throughout the trial, were present.

Justices of the supreme court and the Georgia court of appeals and other high state officials have been invited to participate.

The monument will be a huge five-ton boulder, which was brought here from Screamer mountain through the co-operation of CCC workers. Screamer mountain was owned by Justice Bleckley, whose granddaughter, Miss Katherine C. Bleckley, is clerk of the court at present.

THE COTTON EXPORTS PROBLEM

Textile statistics for 1937 show that only about one-fourth of the cotton consumed by the world outside of the United States this year will be American cotton.

Cotton exports by America for June show a decrease of $7,000 bales when compared to June of 1936. Total exports for the current cotton year, which is calculated from August 1, are today 432,000 less than last year.

The fading importance of American cotton on the world market is realized when the 1937 consumption, only 25 per cent American cotton, is compared to the figures for the five years ending July 31, 1929, when more than 46 per cent of the cotton consumed outside the United States was American cotton. The total amount of American cotton consumed outside the United States this year will be 2,000,000 bales less than the amount consumed 30 years ago.

Charles J. Haden, Atlanta capitalist, in an address before the Farm Chemurgic Council at Little Rock, blames this shrinkage in cotton exports on the high tariff policy pursued for years by the United States. He points out that the high tariffs imposed by America upon goods imported from other countries prevent those countries from buying American cotton, because it bars them from sending their own products here in exchange.

Without the golden rule of exchange of surplus products, world commerce is economically impossible. The foreign nation needing cotton will inevitably look to some other cotton-producing country which does not exact high tariff against the goods offered in exchange for the white staple.

The strangling of the cotton export business by high tariff does not, at first, directly affect the cotton producer of Georgia and the other states east of the Mississippi. The lower cost of transportation gives the eastern cotton-producing states a tremendous advantage over states of the southwest in sending the product to the largest domestic markets. Hence practically all cotton grown in Georgia and neighboring states is sold to the textile mills of the south and east.

The great bulk of export cotton is raised in Texas and it is Texas which will first feel the effect of the passing of the export markets. The result, however, will be a huge surplus on the domestic market, with a resultant drop in prices which may prove disastrous to the cotton growers of this section.

The high tariff policy is one of shortsighted nationalism, which, in the long run, must close world markets to the goods this country produces. Cotton is the first to feel this effect. Wheat growers of the midwest, with a large surplus for export this year, will experience a similar situation on a small scale.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, through reciprocal trade treaties, is striving to overcome the handicap that the high tariff barrier places against American export trade.

The high tariffs imposed by the United States are chiefly responsible for the inability of European countries to pay their war debts to this country. There has been much undeserved criticism of these nations among uninformed groups in America. As a matter of fact, until the tariff walls are lowered to permit free flow of commerce between the United States and the rest of the world, it will be impossible for any nation faced with a war debt of any size to pay the money due America.

For, unless the debtor nation can ship its surplus goods to this nation, there is no method of payment possible. The United States has more of the world supply of gold today than the Treasury can profitably use. All national currencies are worthless outside the boundaries of the nation of issue.

Payment can only be made in goods. These must be sent here in barter for American products if a mutually profitable international trade is to make possible the ultimate settlement of the war debts.

A STATESMANLIKE STAND

The refusal by Representative Braswell Deen, of Georgia, to accept an invitation to speak before a supposed Democratic rally in Birmingham, when he discovered his expenses were to be paid by a political labor organization, will be commended by every unbiased thinking American.

As a representative of all the people of his district, regardless of their political adherence, social beliefs, religion or race, Representative Deen could not properly take part, under misleading circumstances, in a meeting evidently sponsored by a group actively affiliated with one faction on an issue which today ranks in the forefront of the problems of the nation.

Representative Deen's reasons for not attending the meeting are sound, logical and statesmanlike. He emphasizes that—"I believe in the rights and principles of collective bargaining, in the elimination of sweatshop wages and hours, the abolishment of child labor; also, I believe firmly in the right of labor to strike in order to secure proper working conditions; but a 'sit-down' strike, in my honest opinion and judgment, is nothing short of anarchy, and inflicts punishment upon thousands and perhaps millions of innocent people."

With that statement there can be no dispute by any believer in the principles of American freedom and the ideals upon which the government is founded.

Representative Deen is entitled to universal commendation for his refusal, under the conditions, to attend the Birmingham meeting.

He could not, as a Democrat and a representative of a democratic people, have done otherwise.

A NEW ERA IS LAUNCHED

The ratification of eight treaties between the United States and the republics of Central and South America by the senate demonstrates once again the newly created will for "good neighborliness" and peace among all the governments and peoples of the western hemisphere.

These treaties were authorized at the Buenos Aires peace conference of last December, attended by President Roosevelt. They represent a consolidation and extension of the policy of peace among the American nations which has actuated diplomacy between them in recent years. They make legal the principle of inter-American consultation to prevent war.

Ratification of the treaties by the senate puts the official stamp of United States approval upon recognition of every nation in America as a sovereign state, with full internal authority and with equality in all inter-American affairs. It expresses the realization that each country, whether it be large or small, is entitled to every dignity and independence of action due all free nations.

The policies of the not so distant past, when the United States not infrequently assumed the right of force to interfere in the domestic affairs of the small republics to the south, are abandoned by these treaties. It is barely a quarter of a century ago when the presence of armed forces of the United States on the soil of Central American republics was an almost constant source of just irritation to the people of Brazil, Chile, Argentina and the other Latin-American nations.

They felt, understandably, that the United States presumed upon size and strength to interfere without warrant of international right in affairs which were really the sole business of the country involved.

That source of irritation has been removed by the Roosevelt administration. Under the treaties of the Buenos Aires conference, now ratified, all the countries of the two Americas assume equal dignity as sovereign states and all agree that none shall impose its strength upon another in the handling of its domestic affairs. The Americas stand together as a group of friendly brothers, working together for the best welfare of all.

FOUR-LANE HIGHWAYS

The announcement by the State Highway Board that the first four-lane highway in Georgia is to be built as part of the new Atlanta-Marietta road comes with significance that will later mark the date as historically important in the story of the state's progress.

Within the memory of the present generation the paved highway was a rare exception and dirt roads that became canals of mud in rainy weather were the rule. Since that day thousands of miles of highway in Georgia have been hard-surfaced. When the work of changing dirt and mud into ribbons of concrete was begun it was the accepted idea that this would solve road problems, practically forever.

Now the constantly increasing use of automobiles, both passenger and freight, has rendered many of the roads constructed with such pride a decade ago as obsolete as the topsoil highways they replaced.

The speed and congestion of modern motor traffic demands the most modern types of roads on all main arteries. Four-lane highways are essential wherever traffic is heavy. Proper banking of the curves and other safety ideas in construction are vital for reduction in the heavy toll of accident deaths all over the nation.

Grade crossings, not only of highway and railroad track, but over one highway with another, must be eliminated as soon as possible.

The construction of the four-lane highway between Atlanta and Marietta, new to this state but a familiar type of road in many others, will serve as an object lesson and example in the building of other Georgia through roads.

The day will come, in the next few years, when it will be necessary to provide four-lane highways, with every modern idea utilized in their construction, for all the main traffic arteries that cross the state.

For that day, the road to be built in Fulton and Cobb counties will serve as a model and as a demonstration in safety and convenience for automobile travelers.

It's odd about a diplomat putting on a morning coat, instead of the sweater and cap, to announce that his country can pay nothing on an old war.

We may rest assured virtue will triumph in Spain and vice will totter. There remains the small matter of determining which is which.

Editorial of the Day

BY-PASSING TOWNS

(From the Dallas Morning News.)

Highways are the one part of the general transportation system which local taxpayers subsidize, and subsidize heavily. That being so, residents of the smaller towns and cities deserve full consideration when they present their views and wishes to designers of highway master plans. Even if such demands might mar the most perfect of engineering plans, they should be given due weight. Roads, after all, are built to serve man, not to prove ideal concepts of technical efficiency.

Local residents, on the other hand, are not always fully aware of their own best interests in the matter of highway locations. As wheels thicken on intrastate and interstate routes, they become increasing menaces to life and peaceful living in the centers split by them. The day undoubtedly is approaching in Texas when express highways will be built to carry this flood of traffic and freight at the safest distance possible from the homes and local centers of population. This will leave existing and new lanes for more leisurely and less congested use and enjoyment.

In the meantime, improvements and realignment of cardinal highways should proceed with due regard both to the views of local taxpayers and to the demands of heavy traffic efficiency and control. This calls for some sacrifice and compromise in both viewpoints.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

UNEMPLOYMENT CENSUS WASHINGTON, June 29.—Well, we're going to get that unemployment census after all, it seems.

This comes as a surprise to a number of people who ought to be used to surprises by this time. Probably a dozen bills have been introduced for such a survey; press and public have demanded it in resonant tones and with sweeping gestures. But that was all.

When anybody asked the President, "Why not?" he always answered, "Define unemployment, please."

Apparently, somebody stepped up and did just that. If the loquacious squirrel which lives under the White House eaves is correct, it was quite a distinguished group who did the defining. Not just one lonely definer. Several.

And so, that hurdle having been hurdled, the rest was easy—or should be.

THE WHITE HOUSE TOUCH Senator Black, of Alabama, introduced a bill, which, among the horde of others, nobody noticed. In fact, what with the Jefferson Island party just leaving off, and the Fourth just coming on, nobody has noticed at this writing. However, examined through a high-powered microscope, this document looks very important. It reveals what appears to be a White House watermark, perhaps even a White House fingerprint.

Now, once the experts have reduced the bona fide "unemployed" to a formula, it will, they say, be easy for any good, average census-taker to go right out and count noses.

Of course, to be of any value other than serving as a slice of political pork, an unemployment census must continue to be a going concern, that is it must be cumulative, kept up to date.

Some of the modus operandi of this job might conceivably be furnished by the United States employment service and, if we follow the British system, and keep right up to date, the postman can ring twice, once a month, and pick up the latest statistics with the outgoing mail.

COURT FIGHT RESUMING The first salvo in the renewed battle over the court reorganization bill is due to sound off immediately unless the boys have to go home and shoot off their children's fire crackers first.

The preliminary barrage seems to consist chiefly of the adverse report of the senate judiciary committee. It is already the government printing office's best seller for all time, as far as committee reports go.

It is said that the biggest single order, when and if placed, will be for 200,000 copies of the report to be distributed by the National Committee to Uphold the Constitution, a private group which has been helping the opponents of the bill. This organization is credited with having distributed more than 2,000,000 anti-reorganization speeches during the heat of the controversy this spring.

The senate, by resolution, requested the printing of 40,000 copies of the report, which was described by observers of the needs of the anti-administration artillery, as "not a drop in the bucket."

Senator Burke's office alone has had calls for 1,800 copies; Representative Bacon, of New York, has ordered 1,500 copies; other large orders are keeping the presses rolling.

READY FOR ALL COMERS Meanwhile, the opponents of the bill claim they are having a time finding champions of the administration to meet them in public debate.

Time on the air for the first week in July has been made available by the Columbia Broadcasting System and Senator Wheeler is willing to meet all comers. It is claimed Attorney General Cummings, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace have been approached but are unavailable.

FOR THE BOOK The name Roosevelt appears only seven times in the Washington telephone directory, and only one of them is a person—Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt, wife of the late assistant secretary of the navy, a cousin of the President.

The others are: A beauty shop, a hotel, a market, a pharmacy, a steamship company, a high school and a valet and laundry service. All these except the high school (named after T. R.) and the steamship company (Kermit Roosevelt's) were named after the hotel which was here before F. D. R. arrived at the White House.

On the other hand, there are 78 Hoovers in the telephone directory, and all of them are people but one.

Tales of An ## Installation Collector.

He was reminiscing of days long past, of a period in his life when his job was to collect past due installments on the products his employers sold.

"Here's a trick we used to employ with good results," he said. Then described this procedure:

A family might have fallen upon hard times before completing the payments on some article, and move away from the former home to a new neighborhood. The neighbor, having experienced the financial stringencies themselves, were often reticent about telling the new address of their friends. Sort of sympathetic protection from bill collectors, you understand. So the collection man, seeking to discover the new address of the delinquent purchaser, called up the old neighbors.

"This is the express company," he—well—yes, lied. (Note: he wouldn't say which express company.) "We have a package of perishable goods for delivery to So-and-So who used to live next door to you. Somehow our delivery man failed to get, or has forgotten, the new address. Do you know it?"

That worked, he said, nine times out of 10.

Here's

Specific Instance.

In one case the customer in arrears had not only moved, but had changed the family name. The collector believed he had discovered the new address, but the strange name was a stumbling block. The people wouldn't even admit they were the same family he sought, though he was morally certain his suspicion was correct.

So he went out there with a copy of a well-known magazine, said he was a magazine subscription solicitor and wanted to give them a sample copy free. By this means he gained access to the house and was able to secure the manufacturer's number of the article he believed was still the property of his firm.

He sent that number of the manufacturer and discovered it was not the machine he sought, but one that had been sold through another retailer in the city. So he went to the other retailer and found out that his firm's machine had been traded in as part payment on the new one.

He collected from dealer number two and left him to settle the matter with the customer.

No Offense

Intended.

Have received a letter from St. James B. Alexander, of Raleigh, N. C., who takes exception at a description published here last week, of conditions on the Tattal county chain gang of 10 years ago. He objects, particularly, to the description of the warden of the gang as "the toughest and hardest warden in the state."

No adverse criticism of the warden was intended. In fact, the phrase was meant in complimentary spirit. That chain gang, when visited 10 years ago, contained the most incorrigible convicts in Georgia, the ones who were constantly plotting ways of escape. Not all of them understood, but a majority. It was necessary that they be in charge of an inflexible warden. They were, on that day of visit loaded with heavy leg shackles and additional lengths of chain, which the warden himself said were intended to add so much weight they couldn't run fast.

The prison board of that time, a day or two later, corroborated the belief that prisoners who had time and again escaped, or attempted to, from other camps were sent to Tattal because the board was confident they couldn't get away, there.

There would be more respect for law in Georgia today if there were fewer escapes from the chain gang. The role of fugitive from a Georgia chain gang has become so common as to be almost humorous.

Any warden who can prevent escape of the worst convicts in the system, as did the warden of Tattal county in that past year, deserves compliment.

As for the food in the Tattal camp, I didn't sample it on that visit but have no doubt it is just as excellent as Mr. Alexander claims.

From The Constitution of Monday, July 1, 1912:

"SAN JOSE, Cal., June 30.—Two motorcycle racers were killed and two others seriously injured while riding faster than a mile a minute at today's race meet at the San Jose driving park."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Friday, July 1, 1887:

"THOMASVILLE, June 30.—(Special.)—The commencement exercises of the South Georgia Agricultural and Mechanical College, just closed, mark the brightest era in the history of that institution. It reflected credit upon this branch of the State university, and justly entitled Thomasville to be known as the classic city of southwest Georgia."

Burnett, Not Darwin.

James Burnett, Lord Monboddo, died May 26, 1799. He, a Scottish judge, not Darwin, first advocated the theory that men and apes had common ancestors, in his monumental "Of the Origin and Progress of Language."

Dred Scott.

Dred Scott and family were emancipated in St. Louis, Mo., May 26, 1857, by one Taylor Blow, after their case had elicited one of the supreme court's three most important decisions and made the War Between the States inevitable. No one knows what happened after that to the negro who stands out as one of the most important figures in American history!

General Johnson

Inquiry as to President's Position—Left, Center or Right?

By HUGH S. JOHNSON.

Political TULSA, Okla., June 30.—Political tipsters say Mr. Roosevelt is not going to let any important leader appear to the left of him. Some advisers say he can never hope for help from the right anyway, that the center of his strength is in what they call the "submerged third" and that nobody must ever be allowed to occupy that citadel. It is safe to do that, say they, "because he can always move back toward the right."

Those who argue that this has always been his policy point to the score he got from Huey Long and the swift left-lank move he made then to soak-the-rich. Whether this is correct or not, it is clear beyond question that he has continually hunched from his position, "slightly left of center" at the start, far over to the left end of the bench. So far, at least, part of this policy seems smart because it succeeded—but how about the rest of it—"he can always move back."

As yet, nobody has parked in his old left-center position. But suppose somebody did, somebody of sufficient stature and sincerity to make it stick with the public. Then there wouldn't be any place for Mr. Roosevelt to move back to—he would have to win as a forthright leader of the extreme left. Could he do that? Very probably not.

When you say, "right, left and center," you are speaking pretty vaguely. You need to make long-winded explanations and they are no good in politics where slogans and catchwords are the current coin of so-called thought. As late as February of this year, there was no sufficient diagram of what the extremely leftward third new deal was doing to define its difference from the first. But that is no longer so.

Purpose of The aims of the first New Deal were to lift up submerged areas—exploited labor, agriculture, investors, depositors and consumers of electric power. These are also the aims of the third New Deal. The difference in aims, if any, is one of degree.

But since January 1st, there has developed a difference as wide as the world—not in aims, but in methods. Within that difference is a clear distinction between the original "a little left of center" and the present starkly scarlet extreme left.

The difference is that the first New Deal promised to do what it had to do by using the methods of a constitutional democracy—on the lines laid down by our forms of state and federal governments, with a popular control of legislation through a congress checked by an executive and the courts—and not by Fascist, Communist or any other kind of concentration of governmental power in the hands of any kind of dictator.

That was the repeated profession of policy—that was the variable base. Since the first of January it has become plain beyond peradventure that this is no longer the policy of the third New Deal—that, exactly the reverse of this is the policy.

Not Ethics,

But Politics.

This column is not discussing the ethics, but only the politics, of this astonishing change of base. It invites some leader to the precise place occupied by Mr. Roosevelt in the 1932 and 1936 elections and puts in his mouth a resounding slogan: "The Salvation of the Republic." Mr. Landon tried to use something like that but couldn't prove his case. Now the case proves itself.

This newly created position has the virtue of not cramping the front of political promise in the least—and in our recent election the salient promise takes the plum. Some new colossus can outpromise either Huey Long or the President himself. His blasting distinction can be, "but I will give it to you without destroying our form of government, without becoming a dictator, without Fascism or Communism, but in the sacred sovereignty of the American people!"

Somebody is leaving home plate completely uncovered. But is there any runner on third base? (Copyright, 1937, reproduction in whole or in part forbidden. All rights reserved.)

Fight on Conscription.

An official announcement was made of a plot to hinder registration and to resist conscription in Texas, where a society was formed several months before for the ostensible purpose of co-operative buying. The announcement said, "After the enactment of the selective draft law, a strong German influence succeeded in inducing the organization to turn its efforts to combating conscription, and high-powered rifles were obtained to intimidate persons subject to registration and the officials who will be appointed to perform the registration." Eleven men were seized and nine indictments were speedily returned by federal grand juries.

Attorney General Gregory ordered Department of Justice operatives to make stenographic reports of orators and curbstone reports on the subject of conscription. "These reports," he said, "will be gone over carefully and arrests will be made in every instance in which the utterances of the speakers are calculated to discourage registration or to influence individuals into attempting to evade the provisions of the law."

Tit for Tat in War.

On May 27, 1917, British hospital ship Dover Castle was sunk in the Mediterranean. Same day, a dispatch from Tokio bragged that 14 German submarines and three Austrian warships had been sunk in the Mediterranean sea by part of the Japanese fleet since it began its operations in those waters.

The Most Expensive Thing You Can Get Is That Offered Free

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Don't trust the man who offers to do something for you "without placing you under the slightest obligation." He means well, but human nature is stronger than his good intentions.

Suppose he sells coffee grinders. He wishes to place one in your home on trial and let it sell itself. He thinks you will fall in love with it. He says you will be under no obligation to buy, but he expects you to buy.

You know that comparison alone will enable you to discover the best coffee grinder made, and while you have his machine for trial you get several others on the same terms. And you decide one of the others is the best.

What happens? The man comes for his machine and your decision. He gets both. He tries to be a good loser and puts on a sickly, unconvincing smile. But he is as sore as a mashed thumb, and his very tone of voice proclaims his belief that you have given him a raw deal. If he gets off the premises without kicking the cat, it is a rare exhibition of self-control.

Moreover, he leaves you feeling irritated. You have an uneasy feeling that you didn't treat him fairly, and you hate him for making you feel that way.

It is an unhappy business from beginning to end, and it is typical of all experience having to do with things that are "free." You can't accept favors without feeling under obligation, and you can't accept favors without making the other fellow think you are under obligation. It simply can't be done.

Nothing is free. The "free service" is charged in the bill where you can't see it. And usually it costs you more than it would cost if it were a price tag.

If you would keep your self-respect, peace of mind and sense of freedom, pay for what you get and sic the dog on anybody who offers you something for nothing.

Christian Duty.

NEW YORK.—Dr. Walter Ed-

win Peck, professor in the John Marshall College of Law, Jersey City, writes that if the brotherhood of man means anything, it means something in economics, something in politics, something in labor unions and churches, something in our schools and colleges of economic thought as well as something in our various Bibles and prayer books. The error has been exactly that we have imagined it could mean anything within the church without being applied at the same time as effectively in the field of economics and politics.

For these reasons, enumerated by Dr. Peck, we need a fundamental change of spirit and attitude toward the facts of life under the present economic order and a consecration to the ideal of the brotherhood of man, not alone in our churches but from Mondays to Saturdays in the every-day life of this nation and this world, where the tolling millions of our brothers and sisters, as well as most of us, sweat and suffer, sorrow and rejoice, labor, lament and die. The church must take a part in ethics and politics and economics and quit "preaching." Any other approach begs the question, leads to stagnation or another quagmire of depressions and wars.

Position of Church.

It is amazing to see how some ecclesiastics quake and tremble at the thought that the church of Christ should be taught but a shrinking bride sitting at home in pious contemplation. But if the church is to be preserved in the new society of the future, the outlines of which are becoming vaguely discernible, and not be swept into the discard as that salt which had lost its seasoning power and its taste, then it must take up its apostolic task and see to it that there shall come a right employment of the wealth which this earth abounds, this earth which is the Lord's but of which too many seize a part and hold it in egotistical exclusion.

The Fuller Life.

This is a long way from the Socialist motto which tells the masses "to get the money where it is." Let us reason together, let us stop the hypocrisy of growing more than we can buy, so that we starve or

PRESIDENT HALL WRITES OF AIR RIGHTS SITUATION

Editor Constitution: I have before me The Constitution and have read your fair and intelligent editorial entitled "Air Rights At the Viaducts."

In our negotiations I have personally insisted that we request the Governor of Georgia to bring a suit to test out these questions. I personally urged Governor Talmadge to do likewise, but he refused. Naturally we can't expect men to make plans and risk their money where legal rights are uncertain. We think we know what the law is. We may be mistaken. Certainly the people of Georgia should be willing, just as we are, to have the supreme court of Georgia decide finally the rights of the state of Georgia in this property.

President, N. C. & St. L. Rwy.
Nashville, Tenn., June 29, 1937.

PRASE FOR DOROTHY THOMPSON

Editor Constitution: I thank Dr. Louie Newton for advising us to read Dorothy Thompson, Constitution columnist. I had never read her. Hereafter I will tell people to be sure to read Dorothy Thompson in The Constitution.

Thank you, Dorothy Thompson, for that splendid article in June 20th Constitution, and thank you, Mr. Editor, for giving us such patriotic columnists.

MRS. J. O'KEEFE NELSON,
Atlanta, Ga., June 28, 1937.

CCC BOYS ARE WORRIED

Editor Constitution: There are several thousand CCC workers who would like to know whether or not we are going to eat after July 1.

Congress certainly has authority to continue or discontinue the service. And I have no doubt that they will do what they think best for the nation. But our job will end automatically on June 30, unless the congress acts. It would be hard for so many of us to find jobs at once if we were turned out all at once, without notice.

I do not mean to suggest to our congressmen how to run the nation. They are wiser than I am. But it looks like they could say "Yes" or "No" right out plain so common folks could understand what we must do.

Editor Constitution: I wish to thank you for the editorial comment on the Stiles Martin editorial carried in Monday's Constitution. This editorial is one of the greatest this paper has carried, and I think is destined for much larger circulation than that of the Lavonia Times.

Mr. Martin has struck an optimistic note which will result in more love for farms and farm life. I have received three letters today asking for copies, from people who read your nice comment.

PRASES CONSTITUTION'S PUBLIC SERVICE

Editor Constitution: Upon my return to the state, I have read your editorial of June 13, on the 69th anniversary of The Atlanta Constitution, with unusual interest.

I wish to congratulate you and the others associated with this great paper for the fine contribution which it always makes in behalf of an enlarged educational opportunity for the children of Georgia, and for its re-enforcement of the homes, schools and churches.

Threescore-and-ten years, less one for the existence of this paper, is something which all Georgia can greatly appreciate. I wish to congratulate you and commend your newspaper.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE ADMINISTERED TO 14

Former British Subjects Predominate in Group of New Citizens.

Fourteen former aliens yesterday became full-fledged citizens of the United States, with the taking of their oaths of allegiance before Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

Final papers of naturalization were issued to the group by Deputy Clerk Bart G. Nash following their appearance before Judge Underwood.

The judge addressed the new citizens after the oath was administered by Clerk Jon Dean Steward, saying in part:

"You may consider yourselves fortunate, during these days of stress and strain over the world, to live in a country where life, liberty, tolerance and reason prevail."

"Reason and Tolerance." "History has demonstrated that this is one of, if not the best, forms of government to live under, where controversies are settled by reason and tolerance and not by force."

"I hope you will measure up to the obligations you have taken and will receive the benefits of such citizenship, becoming such citizens as will be most valuable to the United States."

Among the new citizens was Willafor Ransom Leach, native of Canada, a veteran of the World War. He served in France as an officer in the Royal Flying Corps and was wounded while on a bombing assignment behind the German lines. He maneuvered his ship safely, however, to a landing within Allied lines. He was credited with downing a number of enemy ships.

Another Canadian veteran of the war, meeting Leach for the first time yesterday as the two took the oath together, Jean Berchmans Begin, also was in the Royal Flying Corps. He trained at Edinburgh under a cousin of Leach. Begin's father also was an officer in the air force.

Married Atlanta. Leach, who married the former Mrs. Anne Bates Walsh, of Atlanta, now is connected with a motor company at Stewart, Pa. He and Mrs. Leach are spending the vacation period at their summer home, Tuckahoe, Lake Sequoyah, Tate Mountain estates. Begin is district manager for an Atlanta building concern.

Two members of the class, Mrs. Minnie Scavia Fersini, Birmingham, and Mrs. Hortense Robinson, Atlanta, both natives of Alabama, were required to obtain naturalization papers due to forfeiture of citizenship through marriage, one to an Italian and the other to a Canadian.

Others taking the oath yesterday were Joseph Sixto Portu and Gertrude Sophia Ullrich, Cuba; Suzanne Renee Anne Pohl, France; Fred H. Maier, Germany; Goldie Spigelman, Poland; Vincente Valencia Makasari, Philippine Islands; Clifton Frederick Porter, Bridget Mary Forter, Amelia Alice Harvey and Anne Russell, Great Britain.

SIX ARE CONVICTED FOR SHORT WEIGHT

Local Dealers Are Warned by City Inspector.

After six convictions on short weight charges in recorder's court yesterday, local dealers were warned by W. P. Reed, city weights and measures inspector, that the city has declared war on merchants who give short weight.

"We're prepared to prosecute all who violate the weight law," Reed declared.

Fines in the cases tried were from $7 to $12, while the short weights varied from one ounce of lard to 105 pounds of coal.

EXAMINATIONS TO FILL CIVIL SERVICE QUOTAS

Open competitive United States civil service examinations to fill Georgia's quota of appointments have been announced by the Civil Service Commission for the following positions:

Junior agricultural engineer, soil conservation service, and Bureau of Agricultural Engineering at $2,000 a year; chief of library service division, $5,600 a year; specialist in public libraries, $3,800 a year, and specialist in libraries, office of education, interior department, at $3,800 a year.

REV. JARDINE DEPARTS FOR U. S. LECTURE TOUR

SOUTHAMPTON, England, June 30.—(P)—The Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, the "poor man's parson" who married the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in defiance of the Church of England, sailed today for the United States.

As he boarded the liner Queen Mary, the middle-aged vicar said he would make a 60-day lecture tour in America.

Decision by Recorders In All Accidents Asked

Motorists involved in traffic accidents should be charged with reckless driving and their guilt or innocence determined in court, Recorder John L. Cone said yesterday.

This statement arose out of a case in which Dr. J. T. Hem-bree, 48, of Route 7, Atlanta, was booked with reckless driving for a collision with a car driven by Mrs. Lucille McElvaine, 29, of Montgomery, Ala. After the accident, which occurred Tuesday on Spring street at the Garnett street intersection, Dr. Hem-bree called the police and was himself summoned to court while Mrs. McElvaine was allowed to go free.

Recorder Cone dismissed the charge, saying that "cases should be made against all parties involved in a traffic accident. The court will determine their innocence or guilt."

British World War Ace Becomes U.S. Citizen

Willafor Ransom Leach, left, World War ace of the British royal flying corps, who entered the service from Canada at the age of 16 and left with the rank of flight squadron commander, was administered the oath of citizenship yesterday. Standing with him is Joseph Sixto Portu, native of Cuba, in the same group of new citizens with Leach. Bart G. Nash, deputy clerk of court, is shown in the background.

Hearst Abandons Evening Field For Morning Publication in Albany

Announcement Says Endeavor Will Be To "Serve Best Interests of Community" in New York State City; Publisher Discontinues Rochester Paper.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 30.—(P)—The Albany Knickerbocker Press, one of a group of newspapers published by Frank E. Gannett, carried in its early editions an announcement of its discontinuance as a morning newspaper. The Evening News, also a Gannett paper, will continue.

At the same time, it announced the transfer of the Albany Times-Union, a William Randolph Hearst publication, from the evening to the morning newspaper field.

The announcement, published on the first page of the Knickerbocker Press, says in part: "As of June 30, 1937, The Press Company, Inc., will discontinue morning and Sunday editions of the Knickerbocker Press."

"The Albany Times-Union announces that after the same date its evening editions will be discontinued, and the Times-Union will be published mornings and Sundays."

"The Albany Evening News has purchased the evening circulation of the Times-Union and will serve those lists. The Times-Union has purchased the circulation lists of the morning and Sunday Knickerbocker Press and will serve those lists."

The announcement in the Albany Times-Union says in part: "Tomorrow, the Albany Times-Union will be published as a morning newspaper."

"It will be the only morning newspaper in Albany."

"The Sunday Times-Union will be the only Sunday newspaper in Albany."

"To serve the best interests of this community and to deserve the continued support of its citizens will be the sincere endeavor of the new morning and Sunday Times-Union."

HEARST FILLS VACANCY IN TACOMA MORNING FIELD

SEATTLE, Wash., June 30.—William Randolph Hearst's Seattle Post-Intelligencer, a morning newspaper, announced today that it will take advantage of the situation in Tacoma, a neighboring city, caused when The Tacoma Ledger, that city's only morning newspaper, suspended publication.

The Post-Intelligencer has begun publication of a special Tacoma daily edition. A complete news bureau has been set up in Tacoma staffed by three Post-Intelligencer reporters and two former Ledger newspaper men. It is planned to enlarge the bureau still further for the purpose of giving the city of Tacoma all the news of its community every morning.

HEARST LEAVES ROCHESTER, CLOSING EVENING PAPER. NEW YORK, June 30.—(P)—The Rochester Journal, an afternoon newspaper, will not be published after Wednesday, and no more issues of the Rochester American will appear, it was announced Wednesday at the offices of William Randolph Hearst. The American was published as a Sunday edition of the Journal.

In a prepared statement, the Hearst offices said that in its Wednesday editions the Journal would say: "With this issue, the Rochester Journal and the Rochester Sunday American will cease publication."

"The circulation lists and the publishing plant have been purchased by the Gannett newspapers. The news service reports and many of the features that have been appearing in the Journal will hereafter be published in the Rochester Times-Union and in the Democrat and Chronicle."

SAVANNAH BOY OPENS LAUNDRY FOR DOGS

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 30.—(P)—Savannah's newest business enterprise is a dog laundry. It costs 25 to 50 cents to clean a dog, depending on the size of the animal.

The operator, Tom Jones, 15-year-old son of Thomas R. Jones vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, hopes to earn enough money to buy a cut-down automobile.

Young Jones is taking in the washing in his back yard.

TOURIST CAMP TAX ATTACKED IN COURT

Temporary Injunction Issued Against New County Amusement Tax, Also.

Enforcement of Fulton county's new amusement and tourist camp license requirement was temporarily enjoined yesterday in an order issued by Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of Fulton superior court.

Hearing on a permanent injunction was set for July 9, at which time the petitioners will seek to have the legislative act permitting the county to levy such tax declared unconstitutional.

Two suits were filed, one enjoining collection of the dance hall license, due today, and the other the collection of a similar tax on tourist camps. Paul Wilson, operator of a Lakewood avenue tourist camp, and G. D. Adams Jr., operator of a general store which owns a slot machine music box—automatically classified it as a dance hall—filed the suits.

Both attack the constitutionality of the legislative act which delegates the licensing (taxing) authority to counties with a population of over 57,000; both contend the act is too vague and indefinite and that the clause making it a misdemeanor not to pay the tax is not referred to in the title of the act and, therefore, is in violation to the state constitution.

The petitioners allege the continuous "hanging around" of policemen to enforce the county license decree interferes with business and is trespassing.

The county has placed a $100 annual license on operators of dance halls and a $50 license on tourist camps with less than five houses, with an additional tax of $5 for each house over five on the property. Wilson says his tax will be $75.

Attorneys for the petitioners are Noah J. Stone and A. E. Wilson.

SUNDAY THEATER BAN FOR DUBLIN IS UPHELD

The Georgia court of appeals yesterday upheld an ordinance of the city of Dublin banning operation of motion picture shows on Sunday except between the hours of 1 and 2 p. m.

The case before the court was that of Charles L. Hicks, tried in Dublin recorder's court on a charge of operating a motion picture machine after 2 p. m. on Sunday.

In its decision the court ruled that under the Dublin charter "an ordinance fixing the hour or hours for showing picture shows or operating picture machines on Sunday or for prohibiting entirely their operation is not unconstitutional."

Man Held for Trial For $1.75 Drug Theft

Alleged theft of $1.75 worth of drugs from a store at 1582 Piedmont road resulted in a man being held under $1,000 bond for Fulton criminal court yesterday.

Recorder John L. Cone held the defendant, Bill Steen, 30, of Palmetto, Ga., after the owner of the store testified Steen ran from the establishment with two-and-a-half ounces of tincture of laudanum.

Steen was caught following a short chase yesterday morning.

may be released upon payment of a fine of $40.

Mathis is the second vagrant caught in a police net spread here several days ago when a scarcity of farm labor became apparent.

FULTON SCHOOLS 'IN BLACK' FOR 1936

Balance of $14,879.46 Reported by Auditor.

The Fulton county school system had a balance of $14,879.46 on December 31, 1936, after spending $1,282,304.88 of its $1,297,183.84 income, the annual audit of the school department filed yesterday by State Auditor Tom Wisdom revealed.

Principal sources of income were $139,740.99 from the state and $841,171.86 from Fulton county. Major expenditures were listed as follows: $788,596.22 for teachers' salaries; $57,252.58 for operation of plants; $103,422.21 for maintenance of school plants; $18,720.14 for fixed charges; $22,924.79 for general control fund.

COX WARNS CIO SOUTH WILL NOT TOLERATE ACTIVITIES

Georgian Charges Lewis With Attempting To Establish a 'Labor Despotism.'

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, WASHINGTON, June 30.—In a blistering attack upon John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, Representative Eugene E. Cox, of Georgia, warned his colleagues on the house floor today that CIO activities would not be tolerated in the south.

The Georgian, who had unanimous consent to address the lower chamber on the strike situation, denounced the CIO movement as an attempt by Lewis and his associates to establish a "labor despotism" in the United States and warned that the movement was a "deadly economic plague creeping over the country, which would end in civil war if not checked."

Good Word for AFL. Cox is one of the few congressional members who has publicly denounced the entire movement as now constituted. He did have a good word to say, however, for the American Federation of Labor, against which certain labor elements of his own state recently rebelled.

"I warn John L. Lewis and his Communist cohorts," Cox declared, "that no second 'carpetbag expedition' into the southland, under the red banner of Soviet Russia, and concealed under the slogans of the CIO, will be tolerated. If the minions of the CIO attempt to carry through the south their lawless plan of organization, if they attempt to demoralize our industry, to corrupt our citizens, to incite race hatreds and race warfare, I warn them here and now that they will be met by the flower of southern manhood, and they will reap the bitter fruits of their own folly."

Declaring that "bloody possibilities lie alarmingly near the surface in any such situation," the Georgian representative declared that CIO representatives are now working in the south, preaching social, political and economic equality to the colored population.

Inviting Disaster. He called upon the national and state governments to "cease aiding and abetting Lewis and his associates in forming a labor-political-Communist movement."

"To continue to temporize with this movement will be to invite utter disaster for this nation," said the Georgian.

"If we are for a moment to admit that millions of working men and women who are satisfied with their wages and their hours and their working conditions are to be summarily denied their right to earn their living without being impressed into membership in the CIO or in any other organization, we must be prepared to admit that this government is no longer capable of maintaining the constitutional rights and privileges of its citizens."

"If we are going to pursue a policy of encouraging defiance of the courts, of approving lawlessness and disorder, of condoning illegal seizures of entire industrial plants, and if we are going, as we already have gone, as a dangerous step further, and use the armed forces of the states, and finally of the federal government, itself to compel satisfied wage earners to submit to conscription into the CIO, then we must be prepared to admit not only that this government is no longer capable of maintaining the constitutional rights and privileges of its citizens, but that it has gone into partnership with the forces of lawlessness and disorder; it has joined hands with a labor despot; it has embraced Communism in industrial relations."

Represents Democracy. Judge Cox declared that the AFL represents "a labor democracy based upon a lawful and orderly procedure of collective bargaining to adjust capital-labor relations, while the CIO believes in a lawless and disorderly procedure to force its own desired adjustments of capital-labor relations."

In support of his repeated assertion that CIO is Communist in its aims and is being led by avowed Communists closely associated with Lewis, Cox included in his speech a list of the names and addresses of 249 CIO organizers which showed 75 of the organizers to be members of the Communist party and 46 others known to be Communists; making a total of 121 "known to be committed to the work of overthrowing the American form of government."

"Unless I very greatly misjudge my country and my countrymen, this menacing condition will not much longer be tolerated. If the federal, state, and county officials do not prove faithful to their oaths and duty; if this sinister movement is not brought within the bounds of law and order, this country will witness an uprising of its outraged citizens in protection of their industries, their businesses, their employment and their homes. And that will be civil war."

NEW YORK, June 30.—(UP)—"Heaven" was declared solvent today by Supreme Court Justice McCook, who denied an application of a former angel for the appointment of a temporary receiver for Father Divine's "heaven."

'NO EXTRA SESSION,' RIVERS ANNOUNCES

session in July, for the purpose of levying a tax on intangibles under the classification constitutional amendment would be justified. The committee appointed to give consideration to this question, after unanimous recommendation that after careful canvass and deliberation, that the returns from tax on intangibles for 1937 reasonably expected to be gained by such a session, would not be commensurate with the expense of such a session.

Tax Structure Revamping.

"There are several things that should be done and are needed to be done in an extra session at the earliest possible time. However, they are not of such utmost importance as to justify the expense of a session for these items alone. Under the classification amendment, a revamping of the entire tax structure of the state will be necessary and by having a session later in the fall as originally planned, we will have more time to work out a fair and equitable system."

"The matter of taxation is so fundamental to the progress and prosperity of Georgia that we must not rush hastily into legislation."

Spivey, Harris, Reid and Musgrove arrived here this morning by plane from Atlanta. They found Governor Rivers still quite ill but much improved over the last several days.

The conference at the hospital scheduled for this morning, was not held until afternoon as the Governor's physicians insisted that it be not held until after he had his midday nap in order that he might have strength enough to go through the parley.

Committee Recommendation. Both Harris and Spivey told the Governor that a committee he named to study the need for a session had unanimously recommended against having it at this time. The Governor told the senate president and the speaker that while he realized the full extent of his illness he did not wish the postponement caused by his condition. Both Spivey and Harris assured him that their report and recommendation would be the same if he was well and in Atlanta.

Shortly after the conference, Spivey and Harris issued the following statement on the Governor's condition:

"We came to Los Angeles at the request of the Governor and find that he has been very ill. However, upon our arrival we find him much improved, and so much so that we were able to have a conference with him this afternoon in regard to several matters affecting the operation of the state government."

gained about his condition, we believe that he will be able to return to Georgia in approximately two weeks."

Routine Papers. Secretary Musgrove spent a few minutes with the Governor immediately after his arrival. He brought from Atlanta a number of routine office papers for the executive's signature but only laughed at reports circulated in Atlanta that he had brought a proclamation calling an extraordinary session. These reports were said to have been widely circulated in Georgia.

It appeared to be certain that all four of the visitors from Atlanta opposed an immediate session and rather than bringing a proclamation for Rivers to sign, brought only a determination to keep him from calling the session. However, as soon as Governor Rivers received the report of the legislative committee, he dictated the statement announcing that all plans for the session were off.

Harris, Spivey, Reid and Musgrove plan to visit the Governor again tomorrow but it is understood they have no further important business in Macon, where there is a two and a half day holiday over the week end in observance of Independence Day they may remain here another day or two but all plan to be back in their Georgia offices not later than Tuesday morning.

Doctors' Bulletin. Shortly after the arrival of the Governor's physicians, issued the following bulletin on his condition:

"Patient much improved today. Highest temperature during last 24 hours 99.8, lowest 98.4. Pulse and respirations about normal. There is still some evidence of toxicity as shown by occasional sweats and weakness."

H. J. Strathairn, M. D., J. J. Singer, M. D., Herbert B. Kennedy, M. D., Dr. Kennedy greeted the Georgia party on its arrival. Spivey, Harris and Musgrove arrived at 7:30 o'clock and Chairman Reid at 11:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Rivers, Miss Geraldine Rivers and J. S. Rivers, the Governor's daughter, were at the hospital. Mrs. Rivers remains at the bedside constantly but their daughter and J. S. Rivers still are permitted only occasional brief visits.

GOVERNOR POWERLESS TO LIMIT LEGISLATURE

Georgia's constitution gives Governor Rivers authority to call the legislature into special session, lets him restrict the business members can transact, but doesn't give him much power over the length of time they can stay in the capital.

Until adoption of an amendment at the June 8 election, the legislature could meet only one call the Governor. Under the changed status, three-fifths of the members of each house may convoke the body for a maximum session of 30 days unless they are considering impeachment.

Only Contingent Power. Should the Governor call the session, he would have only contingent power of adjourning the body.

Should the house and senate disagree over a time for adjournment and come to a deadlock, the Governor could step in and send them home.

Capitol officials recalled only one instance of a governor resorting to the action. Governor Clifford Walker in 1926 adjourned a special session, but reconvened the assembly the following day to consider matters not included in his special call.

The legislature in special session can consider subject matter of the Governor's call only.

Attorney General M. J. Yeomans said the courts have refused to recognize laws passed on subjects outside the call. The Governor, Yeomans said, cannot amend the call once it is issued, but can convene the legislature with new calls as often as he sees fit.

There is no time limit nor any set procedure for the Governor to follow in getting the session started.

TAX BODY IMPRESSED BY VIRGINIA SYSTEM

RICHMOND, Va., June 30.—(AP) State Senator Guy Jackson, chairman of a Georgia legislative committee which will recommend the reformation of Georgia's tax system, said today his group "is particularly impressed" by Virginia's tax program.

The committee conferred here with Tax Commissioner C. H. Morrisett on Virginia's methods of classification and taxation of intangibles. It will report its findings, after further study on other states, to a session of the Georgia legislature to be called especially to revamp the tax system.

"Unquestionably," Jackson said, "Virginia's tax set-up is as modern as any in the United States. Before we came here we had studied it and found in it much we would like to incorporate in a Georgia system."

The main purpose of changing the tax laws in their state, the committee chairman pointed out, is to redistribute the tax burden. "We do not feel that any new or additional revenues are necessary at this time," he said.

Already the committee has conferred with tax officials in North Carolina.

Tomorrow it will go to Harrisburg, Pa., to continue the study and thence to Albany, N. Y.

FRENCH PREMIER DEVALUES FRANC

Sweeping Powers Given Chautemps in Effort To Avert Bankruptcy.

PARIS, June 30.—(UP)—Camille Chautemps tonight obtained the most sweeping powers given to any French premier since the World War and immediately ordered devaluation of the franc.

Chautemps, empowered by parliament to rule "by decree" for two months in his effort to rescue the nation from bankruptcy, issued a decree abrogating provisions of last September's tri-power monetary accord—signed by France, United States and Britain—that fixed the minimum gold content of the franc.

Within two hours after the senate, by a vote of 167 to 82, made Chautemps a virtual financial "dictator," President Albert Lebrun signed the devaluation decree.

permitting early Thursday, to continue her "just for fun" world flight.

Halfway between New Guinea and Howland the navy tug Ontario stood by to work by wireless with Miss Earhart's plane and to go to her aid if necessary.

The flight offered a supreme challenge to Captain Fred Noonan, Miss Earhart's navigator. Howland Island stands only a few feet above the sea at high tide and is only one-half mile wide and two miles long. Between Lae and the island Miss Earhart will cross both the equator and the international date line.

AMELIA IS POISED FOR HAZARDOUS HOP.

By AMELIA EARHART. (Copyright, 1937, by The Constitution.) LAE, New Guinea, June 30.—After a flight of 7 hours and 43 minutes from Port Darwin, Australia, against headwinds, as usual, our wasp motored Lockheed Electra monoplane now rests on the shores of the Pacific. Beyond the Gulf of Huon the waters stretch into the distance.

We had to fly at a height of more than 11,000 feet to surmount the lower clouds while above us towered cumulus turrets. We threaded our way through shining traveling there was better than the unknown mountains. We were glad to be able to make our way through it all—strangers in a strange land.

Air Firm Headquarters. Lae is situated in a corner of the gulf by a winding river. It is the headquarters for the C. G. Airways Company which has made an outstanding record for flying passengers and mining equipment into the inaccessible gold fields. Tons upon tons of the heaviest machinery, used in the operations have been transported by their planes. In fact, no other means exist, and probably without aviation much of the gold would remain undiscovered in "them tar hills."

Hair Is Bleached. No villages are visible from the air. I should think it would be impossible to find one in the dense growth. Most noticeable on landing were native men with peroxide bleached hair. The sun tan effect on their head being striking to a degree. Perhaps the native women also bleach, but as yet I have seen none. Men alone seem to be employed for chores inside and outside their homes.

Everyone has been as helpful and co-operative as possible. Food, hot baths, mechanical service, radio and weather reports, advice from veteran pilots here—all combine to make us wish we could stay.

However, early tomorrow we hope to be rolling down the runway, bound for points east. Whether everything to be done can be done within this time limit remains to be seen. Twenty-two thousand miles have been covered so far. There are 7,000 to go.

Court Decides Today. Federal District Judge Mell G. Underwood said late today he would decide by 10 a. m. today whether he had jurisdiction to hear the suit and will also rule then on a motion by the attorney general to dismiss it.

Another court issue involved in the seven-state strike appeared imminent when Lee Pressman, CIO counsel, announced he had received a telegram from Gus Hall, strike leader, saying he would surrender to Warren, Ohio, police on charges that he was the "brains" of a dynamite terror conspiracy aimed at Republic Steel.

Hall, who could not be found when three of his alleged associates were arrested, declared the

CITY SURVEY FUND IS QUICKLY RAISED BY CHAMBER BODY

Municipal Government Study Expected To Start in Near Future.

Funds to provide the $6,333 for the Chamber of Commerce share in the cost of a factual survey of the city and county governments were raised by voluntary subscription at a meeting of the membership of that organization at the Atlanta Athletic Club yesterday. The chamber has agreed to defray one-third of the expenses of such a survey, amounting to $19,000 in all, and the city and county governments each agreed to provide like amounts.

The survey in all probability will be made by Dr. Thomas Reed, a municipal government expert. His report will make suggestions for more economical and efficient local government and will ascertain whether merger of the city and county governments, either in whole or in part, would be desirable.

It is the hope of the chamber, President Eugene Harrington said, to help make Atlanta one of the 10 best governed cities in the nation and it is to achieve this objective that the recommendation for a survey by Dr. Reed was first made.

Dr. Reed is expected to come to Atlanta within the next few days to launch the survey.

Extension Is Sought Of Permits on Beer

Six months' extension of police permits to sell beer and wine will be asked of city council Tuesday, Mayor Hartsfield said yesterday.

Since council recently adopted a business license provision which calls for full payment for one year in advance by dealers in wine and beer, the mayor said the existing permits would be extended until June 30, 1938. Present permits expire December 31. Hartsfield said he believed "permits should be granted permanently until the license of a beer or wine dealer is revoked" thus obviating the necessity of yearly renewals. Business licenses are for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

SHOWDOWN BATTLE ON WHISKY LOOMS

Prohibition Repeal Vs. Enforcement Definitely Aligns Factions in Georgia.

By the Associated Press.

Georgia faced an apparent showdown battle on the liquor issue yesterday. Participants took sides in a definite alignment of prohibition repeal vs. prohibition enforcement.

Some members of the legislature talked of a statutory repeal, either by local "courtesy" laws or by the state store plan, while church groups throughout the state demanded strict enforcement.

State Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head represented one school of thought in his stand liquor should be kept from the state if it cannot be taxed.

Call for Enforcement. Ministers generally took the view that since repeal was defeated by the voters for the second time in two years last June 8, the prohibition law should be enforced vigorously.

Senator Dave S. Atkinson, of Savannah, was the center of a move to place state stores in cities voting wet in the referendum, and Senator Lee S. Purdom, of Blackshear, discussed local option through "courtesy" laws.

The system calls for legislative delegations in accord on the subject to introduce "general bills of local application" exempting their counties from the dry law.

Local Measures. Such local measures generally pass the assembly without debate comment, the process being almost automatic. A general battle over local bills would be an unprecedented situation in the legislature.

There was every indication the liquor question was headed for a thrashing out as soon as the legislature meets, either in July or November special session.

There appeared a possibility defeat or repeal in any form might lead to vigorous action for enforcement.

More Legislation. One repeal leader, James V. Carmichael, of Cobb county, already has said failure of repeal should lead to formation of a state agency to enforce the law and special legislation aimed at buyers and users of whisky as well as makers and sellers.

The theory of wets joining in a strict enforcement plan was regarded in some circles as a last resort, long-shot drive for eventual repeal, through reaction that would swing the state into the wet column in some future referendum.

Dry leaders, meanwhile, prepared to fight for retention of the prohibition law and an uncompromising enforcement effort.

LOUISIANA FLAG GIVEN TO LAVAL UNIVERSITY

Jacksonville citizens and organizations interested in constructing a new county-owned bridge across the river as a companion to the present county-owned bridge asked for the test action, Landis said.

June Moon Idles Behind Clouds And Marriages Drop in Atlanta

Dan Cupid Mourns as Cold Records of License Bureau Reveal Sag in Matrimonial Market for Month Just Ended.

Dan Cupid was thrown for a heavy loss in Fulton county this June. June brides were not nearly so plentiful as they were last year, when more young couples than ever before took marriage vows 'neath a silvery June moon.

Marriage license officials suggested the drop was probably caused by a wholesale lack of inspiration. Not on the part of the boys and girls, but on the part of the moon.

The June moon has a reputation of being very romantic. Its designation as such has been proven through the ages by the fact more couples choose June in which to marry than do any other month.

Clouds on Moon and Romance. But, in Fulton county this year—particularly during the last week of the month—rain clouds have won more rounds than the moon, thus hiding the silvery celestial sphere from the view of lovers who needed "just a little more courage" to "pop the question."

Such was the reason given for 1937 June marriages being fewer. Only 390 marriage licenses were issued by the Fulton county's office during the month just ended. That was exactly 29 less than were issued last year—58 less persons taking marriage vows.

Last June 419 marriage certificates were issued. That was an all-time record for Fulton county. Previously the high mark had been in the peak year of 1929, when 822 young persons took the holy vows.

There was a continuous decline in number of licenses issued each June from 1929 until 1932. Those were the depression years. In 1931, 356 were granted; in 1931, 337; in 1932 there were only 265.

Roosevelt Enters Stage. But in 1933 Franklin Roosevelt had taken office as President and given the young people new hope, the officials reminded. As a result, marriages in June began to increase. In 1933, marriage licenses were issued to 271 couples; in 1934 to 328 couples, and in 1935 to 338. It bespoke a return to normal times. Then, in 1936, persons deprived of married life by economical conditions began a rush to the license bureau, the officials recalled. They set a June record.

Strangely enough, in every month this year except June more young couples have gotten married than did in 1936.

June and December, respectively, are the busy months for Cupid in Atlanta and Fulton, the ordinary's office revealed. Last December, 714 persons applied for a marriage certificate.

One young lady attendant in the office, when asked to what she attributed the increasing number of marriages, declared, "To plain, unadorned foolishness."

Grandeur of Paris Opera House Beggars Atlantan's Description

By BESSIE S. STAFFORD,
Editor of the Woman's Department.

PARIS, France.—(By Mail)—Everyone who goes to Paris should visit the opera house to see its magnificent marble stairway and the gold and crystal lighting fixtures. Crimson and gold are featured in the drapery and chair covering, and the gilt chandelier in the center of the opera house beggars description because of its size and the hundreds of lights which flood the auditorium and boxes during intermissions. The women wear the last word in Paris clothes, their hair is sleek and well-coiffed, and their gorgeous jewels add luster to their modish appearance. The boxes are built in tiers, and each tier of boxes is entered at the rear from a different level. Grand opera is being presented this summer by well-known artists and a large and splendid orchestra adds much to the performances.

One of the most picturesque persons in Paris is the little policeman with the long sandy-colored beard and a benign countenance, who stands on a stone block at the intersection of several busy thoroughfares and directs the traffic with a white stick. He has served Paris in this capacity for 35 years, and has earned his retirement and pension. But the kindly and friendly little policeman prefers to don his blue uniform every day, take his favorite stand in one of the most rushed sections of Paris, and direct the traffic with a smile.

A visit to the Palace of Justice revealed that women compose one-third the number of lawyers practicing in the courts. They wear the long black robes and the white jabots affected by the men lawyers, and are making great strides in their profession.

Mrs. Joseph F. Gatins, a native of Paris, who lived in Atlanta several years, is beloved and admired by her Atlanta friends. She resides in Paris on the Place des Etats Unis and is very prominent socially. She leads a very busy life and directs her efforts toward everything that tends toward the betterment of humanity and the city in which she lives. Mrs. Gatins is a leader in the suffrage movement which will bring the right to vote to the French woman if the cause meets with success. She is on the board of directors for several charitable organizations; is responsible for making arrangements to let 365 children have vacation somewhere in France this summer. Aside from doing the above, she investigates the need of those applying for relief and sees that several hundred school children are provided lunches every day. She attends numerous meetings called by the mayor of the section in which she resides and lets nothing interfere with doing those things which tend to help Paris and Parisians.

Her tall and handsome son, Francis Gatins, who recently reached his majority, and is the namesake of his father, the late Joseph Francis Gatins, is recuperating from rheumatism in the Military hospital. He belongs to the Seventh battalion of the Chasseurs Alpins, of Albertville in Savoie, France, and is taking the prescribed two-year military training that France demands from her youth. It was in 1921 that Mrs. Gatins and Francis were last in Atlanta, but they talk about and plan to return to Atlanta in the near future. They live in a delightful and thoroughly charming home atmosphere and under the influence of attractive and devoted relatives. The charmed family circle includes Monsieur and Madame Fisher and Charles Villeneuve de Sombreuil, parents and brother of Mrs. Gatins, who think the sun rises and sets in Francis and his mother.

Lord Mayor Arrives.

Sir George Broadbridge, lord mayor of London, transplanted a bit of English tradition and the 1937 coronation when he drove in his gold carriage from the Ritz hotel to the Hotel de Ville one afternoon. Majestic-looking in his gold and red-and-gold uniforms drove the four chestnut horses, and brilliantly uniformed footmen mounted the boxes at the rear of the coach. The lord mayor wore a black-and-gold robe of his full dress uniform, and his three-cornered hat was trimmed with a long black plume. In scarlet robes edged with white fur, the two sheriffs, Sir Frank Pollitzer and Sir Charles MacRae, rode in smaller gold-and-black coaches behind that of the lord mayor of London. The Place Vendôme was filled with tourists, shopgirls and maids waiting to watch the procession pass, and the appointed hour a "le voila" rang out from the crowd as the three glittering carriages hove in sight. The lord mayor took part in the Bal Directoire at the Palais Royal, once the center of Parisian fashion and pleasure, which was brought to life again in a great all-night fête and banquet for 900 guests in its historical gardens. Shops were open, with actresses as saleswomen, and dancing continued until dawn. The Palais Royal once again became gay and brilliant as it was in the world of the directoire.

Flowers bloom in colorful profusion in the Tuileries gardens, once the property of French royalty and where kings and queens walked along the pathways to admire the loveliness and perfume of the flowers. The quaint book stalls along the left bank of the Seine are presided over by still quainter-looking men and women. They offer for sale rare old books and French prints with that never-failing politeness of the French. By all means go to see the Sainte-Chapelle which has a charm peculiarly its own and houses the rose-colored window and the gorgeous stained glass windows that form a part of the roof and extend to the floor. The dazzling splendor of the windows is something never to be forgotten.

Don't forget to join the appreciative throngs filing past the collections of famous paintings hanging in the Louvre Galleries. What ever else has happened to a disturbed world, art seems to have lost none of its prestige when people flock to see the canvases of Madam Le Brun, da Vinci, Corot, Millet, Reubens, Whistler, Murillo and the masterpieces of other world-renowned artists. Watch the smartly-garbed horseback riders in the Bois de Boulogne some morning. Equitation is a favorite exercise with Parisians and Americans, and there is no prettier sight to gaze upon in Paris than that seen on the bridge paths which are filled with attractive men and women mounted upon sleek and well-groomed horses, and cantering through the Bois de Boulogne. It was nice to encounter Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foreman Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Paris, flitting hither, thither, and yon in Paris before sailing for England to spend several days en route to the United States. They went to the Rotary convention in Nice and had lots to tell about the many interesting phases of entertainment prepared for the Rotarians and their wives.

Au revoir will be said tomorrow to gay and festive Paris. All of the enchantment of the city on the Seine must be left behind, but will linger in memory. Vacation time is almost over, and the S. S. "Catinand" will be anchored in the harbor at Boulogne-Sur-Mer to transport the writer and Mrs. John Armstrong to their native shores. While aboard the steady and palatial ship there will be ample opportunity to mentally review the spectacular coronation procession in London, as well as the high points of the marvelous trip through Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Italy and France. Atlanta lies at the end of a glorious two-month vacation abroad. Life will assume a normal status when the train stops at Brookwood station to deposit a travel-weary but enthusiastic newspaper woman who thoroughly enjoyed her European holiday.

Mrs. Brown Honors Visitors at Luncheon

Mrs. George Brown entertains at luncheon today at her home on Fourteenth street, in compliment to a trio of prominent Cuban visitors who are in the city for a month's stay. The honor guests include Dr. and Mrs. Alfredo Albanes Pena and their lovely sub-daughter, Miss Lilia Albanes, of Havana.

Dr. and Mrs. Albanes came to Atlanta to place their son, Wilfredo Albanes Jr., in Emory University, where he has matriculated for a four-year course in the medical school. Dr. Albanes is vice president of the Cuban senate and an outstanding citizen in Havana.

Mrs. Brown returned Tuesday from a month's visit to Havana where she was the fete guest of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Burke Hedges. Mrs. Hedges is the former Miss Georgia Brown, of Atlanta.

ten, and during the World War were in deadly peril from enemy air raids. These priceless art treasures were crated and stood in cellars in Paris until after the signing of the armistice. The chapel is small and stands in the heart of Paris shut in among the buildings of the Palace of Justice. It is a building the like of which can nowhere else be found because it stands apart from all others, and bears the stamp of the rare and exceptional in Gothic architecture.

The Sainte-Chapelle is declared to be the most perfect monument in Paris and is certainly one of the most attractive in its proportions and its vast and marvelously beautiful stained glass windows. These windows have as subjects Genesis, Exodus, the story of Moses, the book of Numbers, Deuteronomy, Judges, the Prophets, Isaiah, the tree of Jesse, the life of the Virgin, Christ in His Glory, the Passion, the story of St. John the Baptist, the story of Daniel, the story and prophecies of Ezekiel, the story of Jeremiah, the story of Tobias, the story of Judith, the story of Job, the story of Esther, the story of Samuel, of Saul, of David and Solomon, the legend of the Holy Cross, its discovery, the acquisition of relics of Louis IX, the reception of the relics and the consecration of the Sainte-Chapelle.

Miss Fleming Becomes Bride Of Mr. Bowden at Church Rites

MR. AND MRS. HENRY BOWDEN.

Climaxing a month of brilliant June weddings was the marriage of Miss Ellen Fleming, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lamar Fleming, and Henry Bowden, which was an outstanding social event of last evening, taking place at the First Presbyterian church. Dr. William Gardner, the pastor, performed the ceremony at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of several hundred members of fashionable society.

Prior to and during the ceremony a program of nuptial music was rendered on the organ by Dr. Charles Sheldon.

The interior of the handsome church was never more beautiful than in its decorations for the nuptials. Forming a background and foundation were quantities of palms, ferns and other rich greenery which were banked behind the altar. Centering the grouping were two 21-branched candelabra holding burning tapers and tall wicker baskets filled with gladioli and larkspur and mounds of the same flowers. Pews reserved for members of the two families were marked with gladioli and larkspur tied with white satin ribbons.

The ushers were Frank Fleming, William E. Arnaud, J. Richard Bowden, John Lewis Bowden, of Hamton, S. C.; William T. Hunter and J. Pollard Turman and the groomsmen were John A. Boykin Jr., Harvey Hill, Boileauillet Jones, Carroll Payne Jones, Stewart McGinty and W. Emory Williams.

They were all gowned alike in becoming models of green marquisette fashioned redingote style and posed over taffeta of the same shade. They were featured by their hair collars and tiny buttons down the front and the sleeves were short and puffed. The long flowing skirts were trimmed in appliqued green taffeta flowers. They all carried bouquets of sun glow roses tied with green satin ribbons to match their gowns.

Beautiful Bride.

The only bride married with her father, Paul L. Fleming, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and Roy Hendee, who was best man. Her stately blonde beauty was further accentuated by her handsome wedding gown of ivory bridal satin fashioned along Grecian lines, which were becoming to her graceful figure. The neckline was offset by a handsome standing collar of Alencon lace and the long sleeves ended in a point over her hands. The skirt widened to form a train several yards in length, over which fell her wedding veil of misty tulle and heirloom rosepoint lace. The lace was used to fashion a close-fitting cap made coronet style which was caught to her soft hair by a small garland of calla lilies. A bit of sentiment connected with the lace is that it belonged to the late Mrs. Harry Hightower and was worn by her daughter, Mrs. Frank Fleming, aunt of last evening's bride, when as Miss Ida Hightower she was married to Mr. Fleming. The bride carried a shower bouquet of pink orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Paul Fleming, mother of the bride, was beautifully gowned in a straight line model of aqua blue lace fashioned over taffeta of the same shade. The dress was trimmed in blue flowers and the short puffed sleeves and the slight train were becoming features. She wore a should spray of gardenias. Mrs. J. Wightman Bowden, mother of the groom, was handsomely gowned in pink chiffon made along becoming lines and completed by a short accordion pleated chiffon cape. The long floor-length skirt widened to form a train and her flowers were orchids.

Reception at Club.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Fleming entertained at an elaborate reception at the Druid Hills Golf Club for their daughter and Mr. Bowden. Forming a receiving line with the hosts and the bride couple were Mr. and Mrs. J. Wightman Bowden, parents of the groom, and members of the wedding party.

The receiving line stood in the reception hall of the spacious club before a background formed of palms and ferns which graced the mantel. Vases holding summer garden flowers were placed on the mantel and throughout the club rooms and in the ballroom quantities of the same flowers were used in artistic profusion as the decorations. The bride's cake was placed on a table which was lovely in its decorations of mounds of white flowers. On either side were crystal candelabra holding white burning tapers. The punch bowls were embedded in mounds of pastel shaded summer garden flowers.

Mrs. Marion Rivers, the former Miss Anne Jeter, and Miss Mary Ann Nolan kept the bride's book, and assisting in entertaining were members of the bride's attendants.

Mr. Bowden and his bride left during the evening for a wedding trip north and upon their return will reside in Atlanta, where they will be assisted by prominent additions to the younger married contingent. The bride chose for traveling a handsome model of beige sheer worn with a long coat of the same material. Her hat and other accessories were of luggage tan and she wore a shoulder spray of pink orchids.

Miss York Is Bride Of Douglas Rumble At Home Ceremony

Miss Johnnie May York and Douglas Rumble Jr., were married yesterday afternoon at a beautiful ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. York, on Piedmont avenue.

The Rev. Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, officiated in the presence of the two families and a limited number of friends, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Lester Rumble, uncle of the groom and pastor of St. Mark's Episcopal church.

Mrs. Isabel Bryan, pianist, and Mrs. Ursella Loenker, cellist, gave a program of nuptial music prior to and during the ceremony. The reception rooms were effectively decorated in a color motif of green and white. The ceremony was performed in front of the mantle in the living room and here palms were banked, interspersed with tall floor baskets of white roses and gladioli. Seven-branched candelabra held burning white tapers.

Miss Elsie York was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore an afternoon dress of pink marquisette with a corsage of pink roses and swainsons. The bride was given in marriage by her father and they were met at the groom and his brother, Cleve Rumble, who was best man. The bride was lovely in an ensemble of navy blue marquisette, the tucked coat fashioned dress length. With this she wore a close-fitting navy blue hat, other accessories of navy and a corsage of pink rosebuds and valley lilies.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. York entertained at an informal reception. Mrs. York wore eggshell lace with a corsage of pink roses and swainsons. Mrs. Douglas Rumble, mother of the groom, was gowned in navy blue flowered chiffon with a navy blue straw hat and a corsage of gardenias.

The beautifully appointed table in the dining room was overlaid with an exquisite lace cloth and had as its central decoration the embossed wedding cake, outlined with white roses. Roses and gladioli were used throughout the room to carry out the green and white color scheme.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Rumble left for Charleston, S. C. They will sail on Saturday for New York city, where they will remain until September, when they return to Atlanta for residence.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.

You can eat and grow fat, or you can eat just as much and grow slim! It's all according to the calories you select. In this calorie-minded age, reducing is a matter of food substitution rather than omission.

You cannot ignore appetite, but you can juggle the calories to satisfy that craving for food, and at the same time dodge the concentrated fats and carbohydrates. The first rule in eating to grow slim is "Don't go hungry." There are two ways to satisfy hunger. One is by eating the foods that give a great deal of bulk for their calorie content. The sense of fullness which is part of the normal satisfaction of hunger is imparted by such foods as bananas, melons, apples and other bulky fruits, and tomatoes, cabbage, celery, lettuce and other fibrous vegetables.

The second plan is to include always a certain percentage of foods with staying qualities, such as fat. The quantity of fat must be carefully limited in a reducing diet, but a small amount is both a comfort to the reducer and an aid in the control of hunger. Be sure to include your allowance of fat in the most desirable places in the menu, as in butter for your bread and baked potato, and cream for the coffee. Remember also that a half-pat of butter spreads farther if it is soft. Fat is less appreciated in cooked food, so use as little as possible in food preparation. Always broil rather than fry your food.

Keep menu, appetite and weight in balance.

Protein has a high satiety value, and a normal amount of lean meat, skimmed milk or buttermilk and eggs in the reducer's diet avert the feeling of weakness produced by a poorly balanced menu. Dieting, of course, is the most direct means of losing weight, but if you reduce quickly on a strict diet, the pounds roll back again. Also, when you diet strenuously and fail to make substitutions, appetite gets the upper hand and sends you back to overeating. In the long run, moderation with substitution is far better than hunger strikes.

Exercise increases the oxidation of fat, since the calories are burned on muscular demand. However, there is one big drawback to strenuous exercise for the reducer. It creates a ravenous appetite. You are so hungry you have to eat, and calorie intake more than offsets the exercise. Moderation is the most important factor in both diet and exercise, and the combination is more successful than strenuous exercise without diet or rigid diet without exercise.

Substitution of low-calorie foods for high-calorie foods is a science by which you cannot fail to lose weight. You like what you are accustomed to eating and believe it or not, before long you will find yourself munching cheerfully on the low-calorie foods.

The daily menus are planned to give you the greatest satisfaction for the fewest calories—always, of course, on a balanced diet.

Spurlin-Argo.
Mrs. Mabel Bussey announces the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Gene Bussey Spurlin, to Jimmie T. Argo on June 29 in Marietta, Ga., with the Rev. W. M. Strozier officiating.

Mary Maguire, seventeen-year-old Australian actress recently imported to Hollywood, keeps her elbows in fresh, youthful condition. Bending her arm, she massages a rich cream into the skin, allows it to soak well in before removing.

Next, she scrubs the elbow with a stiff brush for several seconds. The actress then dries the arm with a coarse towel, rubbing briskly to remove excess skin.

Miss Maguire is a firm believer in the softening and whitening powers of the lemon with which she massages her elbows morning and night.

After removing the lemon juice, Miss Maguire moistens a pad of cotton with a softening lotion and allows it to remain on her elbow for several minutes.

As a final beauty step, the Australian beauty dries her elbows thoroughly and powders them with a light film of talcum powder.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

THE WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Last night we had a very pleasant birthday party here for my brother. It is so long since I have had the pleasure of having him with us on his birthday. I cannot remember when it last occurred. However, that just made it all the more pleasant last evening. We observed all the usual family customs and I saw him counting his candles and he looked distinctly pleased at having only 21.

After dinner Elliott and Ruth showed us the colored movies which Elliott had taken of the fishing trip in Texas waters. The coloring was perfectly beautiful and I don't think I ever saw pictures which showed the fighting fish as well. The picture we saw afterwards was "This Is My Affair." It was very exciting and I would like to know if it really was historically true. Many historical personages, such as President McKinley, John Hay, Mr. Root and Theodore Roosevelt, appear in it. The incident was most dramatic.

I resented only one thing—namely, in the last scene it never seemed to occur to President Roosevelt that he could have opened the letter addressed to President McKinley and judged something by its contents. Of course, if it was a hoax, he would have had to get Mr. Andrews' corroboration, but it might have been sufficient evidence to have stayed execution for a short time at least.

This morning Anna and John went off early, as they have a business engagement in Philadelphia before they go to Wilmington. Elliott and Ruth left a little later to go directly to Wilmington. For any event of this kind, certain people are coming to light who have not received their invitations and I suppose there are others who may have been forgotten. I always wish one could have some method which would be entirely proof against the ordinary mistakes which human beings make.

I found a group of very serious-looking gentlemen gathered in the President's room this morning. Among them was the secretary of the treasury, so I felt sure they were discussing some important financial question. I was all prepared to retire when my husband beckoned me and said: "The question under discussion is, what do I do tomorrow afternoon? I don't think I had better stand in the line."

I wasn't very helpful, but out of the experience of our own past, I murmured, "It doesn't really matter what you do, as long as you don't steal the show."

Only one appointment this morning, and then we worked until lunch time and had luncheon on the porch looking out at the monuments. In a few minutes I am off to Fairfax, where I will make a speech to a group of young Democrats this afternoon.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

THE OLD GENTLEMAN'S CURSE.

Physicians recently have found that the administration of anterior pituitary hormone, either internally or by hypodermic injection, brings considerable relief to men in the earlier stage of prostatic hypertrophy, obstruction of the bladder. The theory on which this treatment is based is that this common affliction of men past middle age is the consequence of functional deficiency of the anterior pituitary internal secretion.

The same medication, hypodermically injected, has been found efficacious in curing not only cryptorchidism in young boys but also the retarded or faulty development of boys with undescended testicles. Such treatment has brought about entirely satisfactory results in numerous cases where surgery would have been the only remedy a few years ago.

The introduction of transurethral prostatic resection in recent years has been a great boon to elderly gentlemen cursed with prostatic hypertrophy. Although this comparatively easy alternative (for the patient) to the formidable perineal or suprapubic operation has already saved much life and more distress, it has been and still is condemned by some of the old guard on one pretext or another. In spite of this characteristic medical attitude, many of the most competent urologists now employ the new method almost exclusively for the treatment of prostatic obstruction and its results experience with it and its results grows they express the opinion that it should be the method of choice.

Some good physicians report that X-ray treatment alone gives prolonged relief in many cases of prostatic obstruction. This seems reasonable enough. The prostate gland is analogous with the uterus embryologically. X-ray treatment is commonly a boon for women with fibroids (myomata) or tumors of the uterus.

One in ten men past fifty, one in four past sixty, and an increasing proportion of men as the years roll on suffer from enlarged prostate. The effect, the only serious effect of his almost physiological change of senility, is mechanical obstruction of the bladder. For his own self-respect and the comfort of those about him, the old man who finds himself beginning to be troubled with undue frequency, especially at night, or with nearly or quite complete obstruction when exposed to cold or when taking a long ride, should make no compromise with fate but face the situation with good sense and courage. The earlier he seeks proper medical advice, and if necessary surgical treatment, the better.

Mrs. Clark was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. W. H. Harrison and by Miss Rebecca Anderson, teacher of the young honor guest, who directed the games for the children. A patriotic color motif of red, white and blue featured the decorations of the refreshment table. The places were marked by candy fire crackers and the favors were boxes of sparklers. Toys were given as prizes for the games.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH McRAE BOYKIN

ALL VERY SOCIABLE.

So goes the day.

The very fact of being at his office all day implies that the man of the house has been working lickety split all day long. Whereas a good part of his business may have been transacted at the luncheon table or in conferences with "the boys" which is all very sociable even if it is part of the job. Now, please don't accuse us of calling the men loafers, but any lady will admit that they do get their share of sympathy.

Sounds Luxurious.

On the other hand, being at home has a luxurious sound, and unless a lady is doing something very positive, like washing or sewing or baking, even she is likely to feel that she is just putting around, so what, pray, could she expect other people to think! But just try to run a house without taking time to order the groceries, plan meals, gather up the laundry, mend the family socks, answer the doorbell, feed the baby, show the older children hither and yon, and so goes the day without one good long breath to bless yourself with.

Our neighbor, Alice R., indigests a lot about that. "Honestly, it just seems as if I never yet anything important done, yet I'm on the go from morning till night," said she.

The Pattern of Life.

But that's the pattern of life for everybody—actress, artist, writer, aviator, novelist, teacher. They don't spend all their time doing the spectacular things, but their achievements over a shadow of the drudgery in their thinking. A lady with a house should feel the same way about her work, because her achievements—scrubbed and shining children, a fine dinner beautifully prepared and served, a lovely room to live in—just happen to be the most important work a woman can do.

Alice R., for all her crabbing, is doing a very grand job at just that, too. Her dining room, for instance, . . . not a sickly decorated room but infinitely pleasant. The furniture is dark oak and of a sturdy build, rather Jacobean in character. The color of the walls literally makes the room—deep beige with a plum cast to it, a shade she found in a piece of chintz and wheeled a painter in to mixing for her. "This same chintz is that plum-beige tone, cream and olive green she used for draperies, lining them with cream satin. The rug is a plain olive green broadloom and the chair seats are a deep warm plum color. On the buffet there are candlesticks and bowl of bottle green glass and she usually sets the table with natural color linen, bottle green glass and pottery plates in dull greens and golds and old ecru.

We say that Alice gets a lot of "important things" done, even if she isn't a movie star or a magazine cover illustrator!

Mr. Mrs. John Lowry Honored at Parties.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lowry, whose marriage was a recent important social event, have been honored at a series of delightful parties since they returned from their wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hatcher complimented them with a cocktail party and Mr. and Mrs. Delkin Jones were hosts at an appetizer party. Myron Freeman entertained the couple at a dinner on the roof of the Capital City Club, and Mrs. Cliff Hatcher were hosts at a dinner party at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowry were guests of relatives in Smyrna, Tenn., for the recent Tennessee horse show and Earl Coleman honored them with a breakfast prior to the ring events.

Other affairs will honor the couple, who are among the most popular members of the younger married contingent of the city.

Dr. J. E. Weaver, University of Nebraska botanist, says recent studies show sudan grass is an effective means of checking soil erosion.

Home Institute Easy-to-Make Slip Covers

How cool this lettuce green and frosty white striped chintz slip cover looks. Whip one together yourself. It's easy!

First, Cut to Shape.

Simply smooth the fabric wrong side out over the chair or sofa, a section at a time. Pin it securely to the seam lines of the old upholstery. Snip off the extra fabric, leaving 1-1/2 inches for seam allowance. Also leave a 4-inch fold at A, to be tucked into the crevice between back and seat. This prevents strain on the fabric when your admiring friends sit down.

Second, Baste and Fit.

Make little darts around sharp curves as at B to insure a smooth fit. Baste sections of slip cover together and try on, taking in or letting out seams until the cover fits like a glove.

Third, Stitch and Trim.

Run up the seams on the sewing machine. An effective trimming for striped covers is a flounce pleated as at C. Only the dark stripes show. This gives the effect of a solid color, interesting for contrast.

Our 40-page booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully," gives clear diagrams and step-by-step directions for making all types of slip covers for every style of chair or sofa. Chapter on upholstering, too.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "MAKING SLIP COVERS SUCCESSFULLY" to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Hollywood Today

By HAROLD HEFFERMAN

HAWAII FAD RESHAPES HOLLYWOOD NIGHT LIFE

HOLLYWOOD, June 30.—Stealing in from the mid-Pacific is a new vogue that has completely captivated Hollywood. State yesterday's headline is the old malady called "Going Hollywood"—because Hollywood itself is going Hawaiian.

In music, in night life and dancing the screen capital is taking the romantic islands to its heart. Everywhere you hear Hawaiian music. Half a dozen numbers that lend themselves to softly-strummed guitars are listed among the most frequently played songs hereabouts. From studio dressing rooms, phonograph records tinkle out the exotic strains of lyrical matters dealing with Waikiki and the like.

The Hawaiian craze started about 18 months ago with a place called "The Beachcombers," a hole-in-the-wall just off Hollywood boulevard. Featured was the tropical motif, Hawaiian music and what all the tourists liked most—rain on the roof, in true South Seas style. Business overflowed the spot. The ingenious proprietor turned away hundreds each night. Soon there were three similar, but larger, establishments on the boulevard itself.

Overnight, the screen crowd found itself converging on innumerable hideaways, most featuring American hula dancers. Most popular of all is one reported to be sponsored financially by Frank Borzage, the director, and Mrs. Borzage.

It is possible to see there in one night such romantic twosomes as Clark Gable and Carole Lombard, Sonja Henie and Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour and her husband, Herb Kay, Claudette Colbert and her husband, Dr. Joel Pressman, Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone, Miss Crawford's favorite tune of the moment is "Sweet Leilani" and on one occasion recently she sang it with the orchestra, labeled "The Hollywoodians."

The epidemic has even spread into Hollywood homes, where Hawaiian menus are being dished out from the kitchens of many stars. Gertrude Michael gave a party for the cast of "Sophie Lang in Hollywood" and chose an "islander" dinner, consisting mostly of fish and fruits prepared Hawaiian style.

From the same craze stem such song hits as "Sweet Leilani" such pictures as "Waikiki Wedding" and such weird patterns as are now to be seen in Hollywood house robes, playshirts for the men and beach hats.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

July means watermelons, at least for those sections where they have had rain, and those who live in the drought areas will hope to find enough change to buy one now and then. One of the first things I look for every morning is the number of cars of melons loaded the day before, and then I love to estimate how many slices that will mean for yearning palates from Maine to California. I also delight to go past these melon places here in Atlanta at night and see the people, often in family groups, enjoying the wonderful fruit. (I guess watermelon is fruit.)

They have had melons on the market now for several weeks, but my father used to tell us boys that we'd probably be as well off if we let them alone until July. He also told us to watch for the crape myrtle, and when it bloomed watermelons would be right. I see the crape myrtle is running true to form with the coming of July, and so that means that the melons are right.

Have you ever had enough watermelon? I have not. I have eaten until I couldn't swallow any more, but I couldn't truthfully say that I ever had enough watermelon. That is one item of food that looks good, smells good, tastes good, even after you can't swallow another drop of the juice. And they tell us that watermelon has vitamin values. That's all right, but I was fully committed to watermelon before I ever heard of vitamin. I am thankful that science agrees with my appetite in this instance. About swallowing the "meat," seed, etc., I suggest that we just leave that to each fellow's conscience. And with reference to the salt and soda, let's have as few rules as possible, at least until along in the fall, say about the first frost. Thank the Lord for watermelons.

Military Note Is Introduced Into Blakelock-McLachlan Rites

A smart military note featured the nuptial ceremony at which Miss Jean Blakelock, daughter of Major David H. Blakelock, U. S. A., and Mrs. Blakelock, became the bride of Lieutenant Clifton Lee MacLachlan, coast artillery corps, of Fort Monroe, Va., at 8:30 o'clock last evening at the post chapel at Fort McPherson. The bridal pair left the chapel through an arch of sabers formed by the groomsmen, all brother officers of Lieutenant MacLachlan, and all wearing the full dress army uniform for summer.

The marriage service was read by Colonel Orville Fisher, the post chaplain, in a setting of floral beauty. Giant palms and ferns massed the rear of the pulpit in the chapel, and silhouetted against the background of foliage were tall floor baskets filled with calla lilies, white snapdragons and white gladioli. An arrangement of stately calla lilies centered the altar, which was flanked on either side by floor standards topped with candelabra holding white waxen tapers. Tall clusters of white gladioli marked the pews reserved for members of the family connection.

Mrs. Ralph Loomis, organist, and Richard Holtzlaw, soloist, presented a musical program during the assembling of the wedding guests. Acting as ushers and groomsmen were Lieutenant Eugene Brown, Lieutenant Frank Johnston, Lieutenant King Henderson, Lieutenant Charles Cloud, Captain Rendon Braswell and Lieutenant Thomas McDonald. Lieutenant Peter Schmidt served as best man for Lieutenant MacLachlan.

Wedding Personnel. Miss Esther Crosby was the bride's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids included Misses Barbara Dean, Jane Clippinger, La Verne Partain, Helen Davidson, Polly Ann Wedderburn and Martha Carmichael.

Miss Crosby wore a gown of powder blue marquisette with a ruffled skirt and quaint puffed sleeves, the close-fitting bodice being cut square at the neckline. She carried a cascade of pink roses. A wide-brimmed hat of powder blue braid and a cascade bouquet of pink roses completed the ensemble.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her father, Major David H. Blakelock. Lustrous white slipper satin fashioned the bridal costume, the princess lines enhancing the slender beauty of the bride to marked degree. The back of the bodice and the long satin sleeves were fastened with tiny satin-covered buttons, and the neckline was cut square in front. The bridal veil of tulle was confined across the back of the head with a spray of valley lilies and extended to cover the circular train of satin. The bride carried a white prayer book, a gift from St. Helena's Circle of St. Luke's church, of which she is a valued member. Her only ornament was a necklace of exquisite pearls.

Reception at Club. Following the chapel service, Major and Mrs. Blakelock were hosts at a wedding reception at the Officers' Club at the fort. The hosts, the bridal couple and their attendants received the guests standing before a screen formed of palms and blooming rhododendron. The lace-covered table in the living room was graced in the center with an attractive arrangement of calla lilies. Mrs. Llewellyn Oliver poured coffee, and assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Orville Fisher and Mrs. Wellington Nichols.

Lieutenant MacLachlan and his bride left for a honeymoon at Virginia Beach. Late in August they will go to Panama where Lieutenant MacLachlan will be stationed. Mrs. MacLachlan wore for traveling a stunning costume combining a gold shantung dress and a black linen coat with gold lapels. Her hat and shoes were black. Linen and her bag and gloves were gold. A cluster of talisman roses completed the effective ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnett Give Reception

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Barnett celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on Saturday at their home on Nacoochee drive. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Barnett were Misses Dora and Callie Wilhite, sisters of the hosts; Miss Callie Watson, of Jefferson, Ga., and Dr. and Mrs. Ellis A. Fuller.

Mrs. Barnett wore her wedding gown of 25 years ago fashioned of white satin and lace, and adorned with seed pearls and orange blossoms. The veil which she wore at her wedding was draped from her shoulders and hung in graceful lines over her train. The orange blossoms from her veil were becomingly worn as a wreath on her hair.

At 9 o'clock, just 25 years later to the minute, the impressive ceremony was read. The same songs sung as at their marriage, "Oh, Promise Me" and "A Sweeter Story Still" were sung by Robert Guy, accompanied on the violin by Miss Elizabeth Jackson. Miss Callie Watson, a life-long friend of the family, who played the wedding march and accompanied the songs in 1912, was at the piano. As the strains of "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin" were heard Mr. and Mrs. Barnett, accompanied by their young daughter, Sara Jo, marched from the library across the foyer into the living room and stood before Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, who delivered an impressive service.

Mrs. W. O. Perry was in charge of the guest book. Serving punch were Miss Gertrude Corrigan, Mrs. F. D. Burge, Miss Ruth Blodgett and Miss Ellen O'Donnell. Others assisting were Misses Sara Jo Barnett and Penelope Stodghill. During the evening 200 friends called to extend good wishes to the hosts.

Lefty Gomez Gives A's One Hit; Bees Blank Dodgers Twice

YANKEES LEAD LOSING CHISOX BY FIVE GAMES

Detroit Halts Chicago; Bud Thomas Victim of Champions.

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—(P)—Lefty Gomez pitched his best game in two years today and one of the best of his career, handcuffing the Athletics with one hit in hurling the New York Yankees to a 5-to-1 victory.

In eight of the nine innings, El Goofer put the A's down one-two-three. In the fifth, Bob Johnson, first man up, accounted for the only Athletic hit and run with his tenth homer of the year. Gomez put the next two men out, then walked a pair, and fanned the next batsman. Otherwise, he was untouchable during the day.

He fanned seven altogether, and was never in any danger, since there were never men on base, except in the fifth. His form today made him a distinct threat in next week's all-star game.

The Yanks collected two runs in the first off Bud Thomas and then in the eighth belted him out and wound up their scoring off Lynn (Line-Drive) Nelson. Setting the pace was Bill Dickey with a double and two singles.

Hank Greenberg's seventeenth homer and Billy Rogell's triple enabled Detroit to cash in on Tommy Bridges' five-hit pitching for a 4-1 victory over Chicago. The defeat ended the second-place White Sox winning streak at seven games.

Hal Trosky hit two home runs and a double to help the Indians defeat the St. Louis Browns, 10 to 3. Mel Harder pitched his fifth victory of the season against two defeats.

Wesley Ferrell pitched and hit the Washington Senators to a 6-to-4 win over his old teammates, the Boston Red Sox. Buck Newsum, late of Washington, hurled for the Red Sox.

BRUINS DEFEAT CARDS AGAIN, 9-4; GIANTS WIN, 7-2

Gabler, Obtained by Boston From Terry, Beats Mungo, 1-0.

NEW YORK, June 30.—(P)—The Giants displayed their new power lineup for the home fans for the first time today and put on an 11-hit attack to trample the Phillies, 7 to 2, behind Clyde Clemens' four-hit flinging.

Although they were at home yesterday, they failed to uncover the new battle punch the insertion of Wally Berger has given them.

Today, however, they teed off on Lefty Lamster, a supposed Giant jinx, and coasted in to win. Mel Ott, recently recovered from the most disastrous slump of his career, walloped his sixteenth homer and Dick Bartell his twelfth, in the big fifth. Ott's came with two mates at bat.

The Bees wound up 30 innings of shutout ball against the Dodgers by blanking the Brooklyn in both ends of a double-header, 1 to 0 and 7 to 0.

Following up the 12-inning 1-0 decision in yesterday's series opener, Gabby Gabler, recent Boston importation by way of a trade with the Giants, posted a four-hitter in today's first game to best Van Lingle Mungo.

In the nightcap, the veteran Guy Bush tossed a five-hitter as his mates drove in Freddy Fitzsimmons to the shower; and followed up their attack on Roy Henshaw and George Jeffcoat.

In another long game with plenty of hits and lots of pitchers, the Chicago Cubs defeated the St. Louis Cardinals again, 9 to 4, to retain first place in the National league against a New York Giant threat.

The Cubs smashed out 20 lusty hits, including home runs by Gabby Hartnett and Augie Galan, off Lon Warneke, Mike Ryba and Si Johnson. Against three of Charlie Grimm's moundsmen, the Redbirds hit off for 11 hits in four innings. Mulcahy 3 in 2-3-4, Jorgensen 1 in 1-2-3, and Jorgensen 1 in 1-2-3.

Behind the seven-hit shutout hurling of Cy Blanton, the Pittsburgh Pirates knocked Lee Grisham out of the box in the sixth inning from a floodlight error. Grisham was hit by a line drive from Blanton, 1-47. Attendance, 5,324.

U. S. Golfers Beat British for Crown

British for Crown Americans Win, 8-4, for First Victory Abroad in 8-Year Quest; Sarazen Stars.

SOUTHPORT, England, June 30.—(P)—The United States Ryder cup team today achieved the goal of an eight-year-long quest when the hand-picked squad of American professional golfers scored the first United States victory on British soil, by 8 points to 4, and thus retained the international trophy for at least two more years.

Leading 21-2 to 11-2 after yesterday's Scotch foursomes, the invaders won five singles matches, tied another and lost two today.

The score in the international series now stands four matches to two in favor of the United States.

Thus the Americans rounded out, finally, their conquest of all of Great Britain's golf trophies for men's competition. Every other British prize had fallen previously into American hands at one time or another, but never before had the United States players been able to capture the Ryder cup on this side of the Atlantic.

As it turned out the invaders did not need that one-point margin they picked up in yesterday's foursomes. In the singles, played under a drenching rain that was driven across the sea from the Southport and Ainsdale course by a high wind, the boys turned on the pressure in the last 18 holes to write one of the most dramatic stories in international golf history.

SARAZEN HERO.
Appropriately enough it remained for Gene Sarazen, who has played in every cup match including the two the Americans lost in Great Britain in 1929 and 1933, to assure the team of retaining the trophy by scoring a sterling one-up victory over Percy Wedderburn.

Three down at the end of 24 holes and still three down after birdieing the 26th and 27th, doughty little Gene finally went out front for good on the short 33rd. There his tee shot hit a spectator and stayed on the green, thus giving Sarazen a chance to hole a 24-foot putt for the deuce which won the match.

While Sarazen's triumph clinched the cup—when Gene came in the winner, it brought the score to 6-4 with only two matches still on the course—it was another veteran, Ed Dudley, who made sure of victory. Dudley's 2-1 defeat of Alf Percival, British open champion two years ago, made it 7-4 and killed the last home hope of tying the score.

Most decisive victor of the day was towering, slope-shouldered Ralph Guldahl, winner of the United States open crown two and a half weeks ago and today conqueror by an 8-and-7 score of Alf Padgham, the British open ruler. Joining him, Sarazen and Dudley as winners were Slammin' Sam Sneed, who routed Richard Burton, 5 and 4, in his international debut, and lanky Henry Picard, with a 2-and-1 defeat of Arthur Lacey.

SHUTE GETS TIE.
Denny Shute, two-time United States P. G. A. champion, accounted for the other half-point by finishing his 36-hole tour of duty all even with young Sam King, a former gamekeeper from Kent. The Irish winners were Henry Cotton, who made up for his poor showing in the foursomes by whipping 1936 American Open Champion Tony Manero, 5 and 3; and brilliant young David Reid, Welsh assistant pro, who topped Byron Nelson, 3 and 1.

The 12 o'clock curfew law that ended the Cracker-Traveler doubleheader Tuesday night almost got Frank Spear's wrestling headliner last night, the Dory Roche-Danny O'Connor match ending in a 90-minute draw shortly before midnight.

It was a match that ranks with the most exciting ever witnessed in Atlanta, each man winning a fall. The big crowd was on its feet from start to finish and even such a slam-bang preliminary as the Cowboy Lottrell-Juan Humberto bout, which went to Luttrell, was forgotten as Roche and O'Connor battled savagely every minute.

Roche won the first in 56 minutes. His face bloody from three nasty cuts, products of Roche's vicious one-two, O'Connor, a fighting Irishman, took the second in 16 minutes. They couldn't finish one another in the remaining time.

O'Connor turned loose arm locks, hammer locks, Indian death locks, scissors, toe holds and almost every formation in the book and forced Roche to rely on roughness, even fouling, to hold his own. That made Dory a target for the fans.

Luttrell was awarded two matches to Humberto's one, this being the Mexican's first defeat here, but Referee Doc Lanford appeared to be the only person in the house who thought Humberto's shoulders were down in the third fall.

Roland Kirchmyer toyed with Dick Lever, winning the one-fall opener in 15 minutes.

The show, a pleaser all the way, was sponsored by the Masonic Club for the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children. Washington Seminary girls took up a collection. Dorothy Kirby being one of them, and a total of $108.85 was realized for the cause.

Moon Walked 1 in 27 Innings
Speaking of control, Lefty Leo Moon has allowed only one base on balls in the last 27 innings. In the New Orleans game he walked Ed Connolly with two men out in the eighth.

Moon now has beaten every team in the league except Knoxville. And the reason for that is, he hasn't faced his former teammates yet. If and when he beats the Smokies it will mean he has won over all eight teams. Which will be something.

At present, he has blanked Chattanooga, Birmingham and Little Rock.

NOVEL EVENTS ON RACE CARD
Six sensational and novel events of auto-racing on Monday, July 5, the officially designated holiday for Independence Day, and seven sizzling races on Sunday, July 4, will total approximately 140 miles of hot speed on the two-day Gold Cup races at Lakewood park.

Programs for both days were decided upon yesterday, with Monday's events equally as peppy sounding as those of July 4.

The July 5 card will be:
Event No. 1—Heldover time trials, if any, at 2 p. m.
Event No. 2—Three-Mile Invitation limited to outstanding champions. A hot helmet style.

Event No. 3—Southern Championship Race, open to ten fastest southern qualifying cars ten miles. Current champion, Irving, will start.

Event No. 4—International Relay Race, open to eight cars selected by judges at least 50 per cent of which to be southern drivers, eight miles, teams of two. Progressive Handicap, reverse start, five miles.

Event No. 5—American Pursuit Championship Race, limited to 20 miles, cars driven and paced by another car.

Event No. 6—International Gold Cup Championship final feature, open to cars that have previously qualified, 15 miles.

Sunday's program follows:
Event No. 1—Official time trials to qualify drivers for starting positions.
Event No. 2—Feature Heat Race, Gold Cup Championship, 10 starters, first four qualify for finals, five miles.

Event No. 3—Second Heat Race, Gold Cup, eight miles, first four qualify for finals, five miles.

Event No. 4—Coronation Derby, open to fastest 10 cars that have qualified in event No. 3.

Event No. 5—Georgia State Championship Trophy Award, open to Georgia limited to outstanding champions.

CORDELE SEEKS NEW PRESIDENT IN GA.-FLA. LOOP

Club Official Charges Unfair Play in Forfeiture of Games.

CORDELE, Ga., June 30.—(P)—Representatives of the Cordele baseball club of the Georgia-Florida league charged today the loop's president, A. D. Walker, of Thomasville, had not "dealt fairly with us," said H. E. Walton, president of the Cordele club, "and the only thing for us to do is to insure fair play is to get a new president."

At a meeting of local stockholders last night, at which the club branded an order of President Walker requiring them to forfeit four games as "unfair and prejudicial," League Director H. O. Drake said:

"I'm sure of the votes of two of the league directors (Moultrie and Americus) and believe Tallahassee is dissatisfied but have had no word from that director. If Walker hadn't called off that other meeting we could have voted him out then."

The league president had called a meeting of the board of directors for June 25, but canceled it after visiting Cordele on the day before and giving the club a clean slate after examining office records.

Savannah Loses Two by Forfeiture.
AUGUSTA, Ga., June 30.—(P)—A special meeting of the South Atlantic league has been called here Sunday by Dr. E. M. Wilder to hear Savannah's protest on being deprived of two victories over Columbus by forfeit.

The two wins were taken for Savannah because Red Lane, catcher, who belongs to the Jacksonville club, was in the Indian lineup. Lane had been sent to Savannah on option. Rules prohibit optioning of players between teams in the league. The forfeited games were played at Columbus on June 17 and 19, Savannah winning, 10 to 3 and 5 to 0.

Directors of Columbia, Macon and Augusta will be the only ones allowed to sit in Sunday's meeting while the Savannah case is being heard. Dr. Wilder said, Jacksonville, Columbus and Savannah being involved. However, the three cities in the case have been asked to send representatives to appear before the other directors.

Don Cramm got the jump on the British stylist in the first set after the first 10 games had been evenly divided and finally won out in the 14th game by cracking Austin's service. The German then swept through the second set with the loss of only three games.

BUDGE ERRATIC.
In the face of the Milwaukee youngsters' cleverly masked of tennis, Budge was erratic, netting frequently or overdriving the baseline with his hot smashes.

The gallery of 15,000 Britons shattered precedent by missing the traditional tea and crumpets to cheer Austin's gallant fight against von Cramm.

The tightly wedged spectators grumbled but none deserted the stands at tea time as Austin and von Cramm battled one hour and 20 minutes in the marathon third set alone and a total of 2-1-2 hours all told.

Von Cramm got the jump on the British stylist in the first set after the first 10 games had been evenly divided and finally won out in the 14th game by cracking Austin's service. The German then swept through the second set with the loss of only three games.
